Schools Find Numerous Solutions for Language Barriers of Children from Many Lands

"Guten tag!" shouts the blonde Community Park kindergartener to principal Eugene Biringner.

Not a standard Community Park greeting, but the natural one for this German five-year-old. Some two-dozen nations are represented this year --- and every year --- at Community Park, another two or three dozen at Riverside and a scattering of others in the schools of Princeton's system.

"We have every European nation," Mr. Biringner says, "except Norway."

Numbers are imprecise because of definition and degree. Some boys and girls don't know any English at all. Some have skeletal knowledge from schools in their home-land, others come from permanent families in Princeton where English is not spoken at home.

Community Park is the big melting pot because international scholars at the Institute for Advanced Study send children there. Seminary children attend that school, too, and so do the children of Princeton's newest ethnic group, the French-speaking Haitians. At Riverside, children come from the Hibben-Magie apartments where junior faculty live, and many of these young couples come from abroad.

"We encourage the use of English," says Mr. Biringner, smiling in recollection of the German greeting, "but we let the kids know that when they want to talk, they can communicate in any way they can and we'll do what we can to understand."

Communication can be vividly non-verbal. That same blonde boy, later in the day, sat on the lap of the school nurse, sobbing hard and clutching what was obviously a very painful stomach. His mother, who speaks English, was on her way to pick him up. But in the meantime, he looked out through his wet blue eyes at an uncomprehending, if sympathetic, world.

He's one of a family of four children now at Community Park. He has only been in school a month.

"By December, he'll speak English reasonably well," Mr.

Biringner predicts, "by June, you'll hardly be able to tell the difference between him and the American kindergarteners."

The best teachers are the other children. Edith Francis, principal of Riverside, nods in agreement with that. She assigns each foreign child an American buddy (the buddy system is optional with the teacher at Community Park). Your buddy shows you where the toilet is, how to go through the lunch line --- important things. With sly wisdom, Mrs. Francis often chooses a shy, withdrawn American child to be the buddy, thereby helping two kids at once.

Budget cuts eliminated the TESOL teacher from Princeton schools. These teachers --- "Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages" is the acronym -- used to spend all their time with foreign students. Now, at Riverside,

Appeals on Public Housing Exceed Five Hours; Committee Expected to Reach Decision Monday

Township Committee may reach a decision next Monday on the Yedlin public housing question. Committee and a full audience listened for over five hours Monday night to two appeals from the Planning Board's approval of site plans for the 100-unit Mt. Lucas Road project.

The Yedlin project is a kind of retention basin, holding all the same arguments, pro and con, and releasing them every few weeks in a verbal stream that seem—at 1 a.m., at least—never to end.

It's the retention basin on the 10-acre site that is the focus of protest. The site plan review board told Mr. Yedlin and the Borough Housing Authority they had to make sure the basin—a saucer-like hole in the ground surrounded by an earthen rim—retained at least 80 percent of the additional water that would accrue to the rocky, hilly site as a result of the buildings to be constructed on it. Mr. Yedlin's engineer, Robert Jamieson of Van Note-Harvey Associates, claims it will take care of 100 percent of the new water.

His calculations and those of Joseph Hodak, Township engineer, and the design of the basin have been challenged by Dwight O. North of the Township's Flood Control Committee. Mr. North is a retired physicist formerly with RCA.

Motives Questioned. Around 1:15, Robert Hosford, who lives on Terhune Road, said tartly to Committee, "We question the motives of the people here. Both Princeton Community Housing and the Institute for Defense Analyses have retention basins, and nobody raised questions—not even Mr. North. Where was he then?"

However, a newcomer to the objecting neighbors, Benjamin Levine, attorney for the newly formed Mountain Lakes Brook Watershed Preservation Association, disclaimed any interest except flood prevention.

"There have been allusions to racial questions," he said, "but the Association is solely and unequivocally concerned with flood protection. If adequate flood protection for the streets where Association members live can be assured, we have no objection to the project."

Members live on Laurel, Red Hill, Mansgrove and adjacent streets. Mr. Levine charged that a Housing and Urban Development (HUD) study was inadequate, but Mayor Jay Bleiman said nobody had ever seen any Federal study, and besides, the Planning Board had required, not a study, but a performing retention basin.

Problem Not Understood. A letter from Richard Cobb, 121 Braeburn, charged that the retention basin could not perform its job without sophisticated measuring equipment, and he said he didn't think the Planning Board understood the problem at all, but simply voted to accept what seemed reasonable as a retention basin. Like Mr. Levine, he urged a study commission, and a moratorium on building—including the Yedlin project—until the study was completed.

Colonel James Green, 688 Ewing, who has taken the Township to court over the project, and who is one of 29 names on a protesting petition, told Committee that both the site plan review and Planning Boards were "unwilling and unable to provide competent review of the efforts to protect downstream properties."

He cited the November 1 deadline Mr. Yedlin has for land purchase and observed "Deadlines in the past have turned out not to be crucial."

But Mr. North and Mr. Hodak, sparring, dueling, commenting acidly on each other's expertise, were the star performers of the evening. Mr. North has levied serious charges against Mr. Hodak that he deliberately gave "false" testimony to the Planning Board. He has also disputed the way rainfall has been calculated, challenged the concept of "15-year" or "100-year" storms and in lengthy, technical presentations to Planning Board and Committee, has said the basin won't work.

"My reputation and integrity have been challenged," Mr. Hodak began, as he prepared a blackboard for a chalk-talk, "I am sorry I have to be part of these proceedings."

Errors Found. In an hour-long presentation, interrupted by questions from Mr. North and Committee, Mr. Hodak diagrammed the way he made his calculations for the retention basin. Yes, he had worked with Mr. Yedlin's engineer, he said. He had also found errors in Mr. North's calculation and analysis. "He neglected to consider the outflow from the basin," Mr. Hodak said flatly.

He said repeatedly that the basin is a "de-tention," not a "retention" basin. "It's not a lake," he told Committee.

When Mayor Jay Bleiman quoted Mr. North's contention that lesser storms will cause more run-off because the basin isn't deep enough to retain them, Mr. Hodak said that wasn't "entirely true." Water will be partially retained in such storms, he said, adding that the basin "cannot help but improve conditions downstream, even though it will fail in lesser storms."

Site plan review board members had also come under Mr. North's guns, and board chairman A. Perry Morgan defended them. Mr. North had said that Robert Engelbrecht, who later disqualified himself, should not have heard the case because his house is near the site, and he told Committee Carl Lindbloom is affiliated with J. Robert Hillier, architect for Mr. Yedlin. Mr. Engelbrecht withdrew because of his views on public housing, Mr. Morgan said, and Mr. Lindbloom only rents space from Mr. Hillier.

Having heard Mr. North's 50-minute presentation—Mayor Bleiman gave him five minutes over the assigned time, which was kept by a ringing alarm clock—Edwin Hutter wondered aloud how local government can handle today's complex technical problems. A physicist himself, he also had technical questions to ask Mr. Hodak, and he remarked, "If the Planning Board had acted responsibly, it would have asked Mr. Hodak to respond to Mr. North."

"The facility WILL work," was Mr. Hodak's last comment.

setback and common space variances for 14 units, the price will be $147,000. Otherwise, Design Interface will pay $140,000 for the land. The present University Cleaners building will, of course, be torn down.

All houses will front on Willow. Each house will have a garage and two outdoor parking spaces in a brick-paved fore-court. A walled garden will be at the rear of each unit.

The entry level will contain a foyer, a large game room facing the garden and storage. Above will be a story-and-a-half living-room, a dining-room, a kitchen with breakfast and hobby areas. There will be three bedrooms and two-and-a-half baths. The houses will be sheathed in brick, and will have bronze windows.

the speech therapist Zel Pattison works with these pupils, more or less in her spare time. Right now, she has four Israelis who speak Hebrew, a child whose father in Spanish and whose mother is Japanese, and three Vietnamese. She also has a few Haitians.

"I get the kids to act out — walking, skipping. Sometimes I act out a word and they think that's hysterical! We've been learning to read and we're now in the 'AT' family — you know, 'Who is the cat sitting on?' 'The cat is sitting on the rat'. They love it."

At Community Park, the burden of extra help falls on the Supplementary Instructor ("Remedial Reading" is the old job description).

"We just can't give the extra time to most foreign kids," Mr. Biringer explains, "it's not a serious problem, it just delays their absorption into the mainstream."

Teachers at Community Park who use the buddy system will ask the American buddy to teach a certain number of English words a week. And even without a formal buddy, a first or second grader will learn English, almost by osmosis, in the Princeton-style classroom where kids often work independently of the teacher.

Occasional Animosity. The Playground is the other classroom, of course. Mr. Biringer, looking out his office window at checker-players, moving their counters in happy disregard of a friendly scuffle surging around them, observes that foreign kids are, sadly, picked on now and then.

"We have a delightful ten-year-old Vietnamese boy," he says. "The kids love him! His English is halting — he's been here since May and he picked up a lot of English this summer — but he's friendly and outgoing. These are the kids whose language development moves right ahead."

"The kid who fights acculturation has difficulties. The other kids will reject him. But this rarely happens."

Mrs. Pattison has an eight-year old Vietnamese who is so quick at learning English that she leaps ahead of others in the little group. Riverside's learning disability specialist, Janet Thompson, once called on a Japanese third-grader who had learned English last year, to attempt communication with a shy Vietnamese.

Ms. Thompson helps the teacher by giving the foreign child tests to find out the level of computation, as well as language, skill. Even if you can't speak English, you can do arithmetic. The teacher will give this child only straight computation problems until English improves. Then the pupil can move into "If Johnny has four apples and Sally has six...."

Teaching the Very Young. For the very youngest, Riverside has an adult volunteer, Mrs. David Redfield. She takes kindergartners or first-graders one day a week, teaching English orally. Other volunteers chat with boys and girls who have had English a year or so, but are still shaky.

In a K-1-2 room at Community Park, Faye Hunsinger has her foreign students make booklets with pictures of animals or flowers. This week, they're doing "opposites." One child, stubbornly resistant at first, suddenly grasped the meaning of "boy" and "girl" and ran around the room shouting and pointing gleefully at the other pupils — "Boy!" "Girl!" "Boy!"

"Girl!" But in a group of many children, where set theory is being explained, she sits listless and bored. In a small group of two or three, she comes to life.

Mrs. Hunsinger has one American-born child who is so happy "teaching" English that she thinks she knows every language!

Here Temporarily. Mostly, these children are visitors to the United States. Their parents — usually the fathers — are physicists, historians, petroleum engineers, ministers, who will return to their native lands after one or two years at the Institute, Seminary, University or some industrial enterprise.

Each year, when school starts, Mr. Biringer goes out to the Institute with the PTO president (Mrs. Sally McFarlane this year) to try and relieve the anxieties of these parents about the fate of their children in a strange school.

"We discuss the reporting systems, lunch programs, what the parent can expect," Mr. Biringer says. "We encourage parents to bring us a problem right away, and not let it develop into a big problem. We tell them we welcome their visits and would love to have their help."

Community Park doesn't give home-work in the primary grades, and parents from abroad find this hard to understand. One mother told Mr. Biringer she had blocked out an hour or two of study each night for her third-grader. "I gave her a Dutch-uncle talk, and told her not to," Mr. Biringer smiles.

No English at Home. Princeton also has permanent residents who have come here to live from abroad. Traditionally, in Princeton, these have been Italians from the Campobasso area around Naples. Families have been coming here from that area for generations and are still coming.

"The problem here," Mr. Biringer has found, "is that the mother usually speaks no English and the father only the smattering he picks up on his job. This means no English at all in the home."

Mrs. Hunsinger has a boy in class who speaks English poorly, but doesn't speak Italian at all.

Haitians have been arriving here in increasing numbers over the past few years, apparently sponsored by someone in town. Families live on Witherspoon or Green Streets, and the fathers are usually in low-paying jobs, like dish-washing or waiting on table.

The French spoken by Haitians is not "French," French and when Mr. Biringer summoned a French teacher to translate for him what a boy was trying to say, the teacher found she could not understand the child at all.

Some Will Return. But like the others, they will eventually learn the language and blend wholly into the lively playground scene by June.

Children who go back home, to Formosa, Malaysia, Indonesia, the Philippines, Turkey, Switzerland, France, Israel, Poland — but not Norway! — may very well come back again in a year or two. Mr. Biringer has greeted old friends, now in fifth grade, whom he knew as kindergartners. English comes back quickly for these recidivists.

"At the end of the school year, foreign parents are always happy about their children's experiences," Mr. Biringer says, with quiet pleasure. "I've never had anything but positive comment."

"You know, we have a much freer classroom situation and older kids from abroad sometimes don't know what to make of it at first. Parents have a similar uneasiness about our freedom, but I've had parents tell me it will be hard for their kids to go back, and they say they wish their own schools could provide this freedom."

THOSE BOROUGH TAXES
"Progress" with State? "I think we made some progress," said Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley cautiously, reporting on a Monday meeting with State Senator Anne Martindell—at her request—on the Borough's agonizing tax position under the new thorough-and-efficient education bill.

Senator Martindell invited Mayor Cawley and Borough Council member Barbara Sigmund to participate in a telephone interview with Senator Stephen Wiley, sponsor of the education measure.

The three Princeton officials would like to see the legislature separate the problem of sharing the burden of school costs statewide—"which we agree with," the mayor emphasized—from the question of cost-sharing within a regional district.

"Senator Wiley didn't clearly say whether he agreed with this," the mayor acknowledged. He added however, that he thinks legislators are breathing easier now that the court-required law has finally been passed. They may be more flexible the mayor hopes, about planning ways to extricate the Borough, Plainboro and some three dozen other towns, from the crushing new tax burden imposed by a shift in the cost-sharing formula used by regional school districts from per-pupil to rateables.

Senator Wiley told Mayor Cawley, the mayor reported, that sending districts will continue to pay on a per-pupil basis. The mayor hopes this is a faint indication that Borough and Township will be allowed to continue on that path, also.

The mayor would also like to explain to the state that commercial rateables should be separated from residential rateables. "The wealth of the Borough is in commercial rateables, not in residential," the mayor explains. "The Township has an average family income 50 percent higher than the Borough, and this makes a heck of a lot of difference in how much we can afford."

The meeting with state officials tentatively scheduled for October 14, has been postponed until Mayor Cawley and the Borough can organize other towns and assemble data for presentation to the state.

OFF TO WASHINGTON

To Save the Dinky. Two Princeton residents—Barbara Sigmund and Edwin Hut-

ter—have been named to the steering committee of a statewide citizens group formed to continue citizen pressure on railway planning in New Jersey.

Mrs. Sigmund, a member of Borough Council, and Mr. Hutter, of the Save-the-Dinky Committee, will journey to Washington this Friday to push for passage of S2379, Senator Harrison Williams' bill. The measure would compel ConRail, when it takes over, to honor all existing contracts for branch lines for one year. This could mean continuing operation of the dinky until February, 1977, Mrs. Sigmund says.

Although there is a November 9 deadline, Mrs. Sigmund emphasizes that "the dinky will not shut down November 10." The state has a commitment to keep it going through the fiscal year—to June 30.

The two lobbyists will confer with Senator Vance Hartke, chairman of the Surface Transportation Subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee, where the bill now is, and with Representative Fred Rooney, chairman of the Transportation Subcommittee of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

Mr. Hutter and Mrs. Sigmund will also check in at the new office Governor Brendan T. Byrne has set up in Washington to guard New Jersey interests, and will talk with Princeton graduates who are Senators or members of Congress.

"How can they go back to old Nassau if the dinky goes?" Mrs. Sigmund says, "I don't feel hopeless at all, but we need to push to get that bill passed."

WILL STUDY STREAMS

In Township. Before embarking on its marathon hearing Monday night (see story, page 1), Township Committee wiped out its earlier ordinance providing for a Mountain Lakes Brook study, and substituted a new one, scheduling public hearing for October 20.

The new measure broadens the original plan to include mapping of the whole drainage basin, not just the linear strip of the stream. The new cost is $72,000, compared to the $58,000 of the new ordinance.

Committee member Elizabeth Hutter, who had voted against the first ordinance, was satisfied with this expanded one and joined in the 5-0 vote.

Committee also voted $3,500 for bike path curb-cuts, and set October 20 for public hearing. Unanimously, Committee rejected the high bids for recreation facilities on the north side of Route 206 and heard consultants Zion and Breen explain the reason for the steep bids. Contractors think there is more rock than there is, said the consultants advising Committee that they have soil logs to prove their point. Also, designs on some structures were changed and

PATIENT IS KILLED

Struck by Garbage Truck. A patient at Princeton House was killed instantly Monday morning when he was struck by a garbage disposal truck on Mount Lucas Road near Herrontown.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Frank Sparrow, a passer-by, was E. Webb Harrison, Jr., 33, of Orangeburgh, N.Y. Police said that Dr. Harrison, a psychiatrist, suffered massive head and internal injuries.

No charges have been made against the driver, James C. McAvoy of Cranbury, driver of a 28-ton Princeton Disposal Service garbage truck. The investigation is being continued by Sgt. Anthony Nini, Township traffic safety officer, and Ptl. William Potts.

Sgt. Nini reported that Mr. McAvoy told him the next day that before he knew it, the victim was in front of his truck and he had hit him. "We're still trying to piece it together," Sgt. Nini said.

The tragedy occurred at 10:10. A wooded area surrounds the intersection, police said, and there are no sidewalks. The truck was heading toward Rocky Hill.

Police are looking for the driver of a white Volvo who drove by in the opposite direction at the time of the accident. "He's definitely not involved but we hope he'll come forth so we can talk to him," said Sgt. Nini.

Dr. Harrison was serving his apprenticeship at Rockland State Hospital in Orangeburg. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Webb Harrison of Lawrenceville.

A Princeton Country Day School graduate, he attended Phillips Andover Academy and then Princeton, where he was an outstanding soccer and lacrosse player. A member of Ivy Club, he graduated from Princeton in 1964.

Dr. Harrison received his

At the time of his death he was visiting his parents. Dr. Harrison is also survived by a sister, Mrs. Edwin H. Clark II.

A number of those perfect October days have been upon us since the first of the month—in fact, precipitation after the late September rainfall ended has been virtually nil.

The sun will be with us until Friday, the Man says, but Saturday showers are a possibility. Temperatures will range from the mid 40s at night to near 70 by day. Driver Hurt on 206. Mrs. Karen A. Brinton, 41, Grand View Avenue, Skillman, was injured Tuesday morning when she lost control of her small foreign car on Route 206 not far from Mary Watts' store and struck a telephone pole.

She was taken by the Princeton First Aid Squad following the 10:03 accident and admitted for x-rays and treatment of a broken nose, multiple lacerations of the face and injuries to her elbow, hand and ankle. Her car was extensively damaged.

Mrs. Brinton was charged with careless driving by Ptl. Howard Sweeney, who is continuing the investigation.

The response of two witnesses, who stopped to give first aid and assistance was lauded by the police.

Mrs. William Punnett, 14 Washington Street, Rocky Hill, had the victim's head cradled in her arms for support and protection against possible neck injuries before the police arrived.

John O'Brien of Parsippany, a member of the Rockaway Neck First Aid Squad, arrived after the police, and asked if he could be of assistance. He had his own fully-equipped emergency kit (which was later run over by a truck) and aided police by informing them what kind of medical assistance the victim needed.

"He did an excellent job," said Sgt. Michael Kopliner, one of those at the scene.

Cyclist Hit by Car. A 15-year old bicyclist was struck by a car pulling off the side of The Great Road Friday morning.

Jonathan Fabian, 215 Brookstone Drive, was taken to Princeton Medical Center for treatment of minor leg injuries.

The driver, Mrs. Grace M. McEvoy, 64 Winfield Drive, told police that she had pulled off to the side when her windshield began to fog and sideswiped the cyclist who was not visible at the time. She was ticketed for careless driving by Ptl. John Clausen.

SHEEHAN TO COUNCIL
With Zoning Recommendation. When Borough Council meets next Tuesday at 8 in Borough Hall, the "star attraction," in Mayor Robert W. Cawley's words, will be the Sheehan recommendation from the Zoning Board.

The board has recommended that Council grant a use variance and bulk variances and waiver of off-street parking spaces to the Dundas Corporation for its uncompleted office building at Nassau and Markham. Timothy Sheehan is an officer of Dundas, and the building is best known as the Sheehan Building.

Council will also consider transfer of the liquor license of the old bowling alley to its new owner, Robert Poitras. He hopes to open a restaurant on the premises.

Council may also approve the town's long-range capital budget, with its provisions for a new fire truck, library expansion, garbage trucks, and that old, capital budget rerun, a parking garage.

MONEY SAVED....

Helps Your Taxes. The Township tax office will save about $4,000 tax dollars by moving from its Opinion Research Building office to new quarters in the Valley Road building.

Tax office and purchasing will both make the move. The two offices will be closed this Friday—moving day—and will re-open in Valley Road Monday morning at 9. The offices are on the first floor of the Valley Road entrance.

The Township will pay the Princeton Regional School Board $3.29 per square foot. ORC has been getting about $6.25. The annual saving, estimates Administrator Joseph R. Nini, is $4,000.

SO MUCH TO LEARN: "I've got so much to learn," said Monica Sheehan after her first week as the newest member of the Borough police. Ms. Sheehan, who will attend the police training school at Sea Girt in November, added that she likes her new job very much. Before joining the Borough force, Ms. Sheehan, 25, worked in security at the College of Medicine in Piscataway. She has a minor in police science from the State University of New York in Albany.

CIGARETTES STOLEN
Valued at $850. One-hundred eighty cartons of cigarettes valued at $850 were stolen last week from a delivery truck parked overnight at Princeton Service Company, 306 Alexander Street.

The theft was reported Friday morning by Richard Smith, an employee of the firm, who told police that he noticed several cartons missing from his truck. There was no sign of forced entry, police said.

Princeton Community Village under construction on Bunn Drive continues to be a favorite target of thieves.

Joseph A. Nalbene and Richard R. Keller, both employees of Melrose Electric Contracting Company, reported that their tool boxes had been stolen from a locked bin in the basement area. The lock hasps of the bin had been cut, police said. The tool boxes were valued at $188 and $150.

The Fjord Construction Company of Midland reported the theft from the same site of an air compressor from a sixth floor hallway. Police also listed the theft of a refrigerator from the N.J. Armory—now empty—on River Road. It was reported by Major Eugene Jakubowski of the N.J. National Guard.

A Pennington resident, Ludwig Umscheid, 161 E. Delaware Avenue, lost clothing and miscellaneous items valued at $205 when his car, parked on Leigh Avenue, was broken into Thursday night between 9 and 10:30. Other articles in the car were strewn about, police said.

Township police also report the attempted entry through a bathroom window of a residence at 134 Alexander Street.

They said that a pane of glass had been broken and there were heavy scratches on the outside of the window but apparently no entry was made. It was reported Friday by Ellen Waitt and investigated by Ptl. David Wilbur.

$600 Bicycle Stolen. A professional bicycle (Raleigh, serial no. A9330), valued at $600, was stolen Friday from the Dillon Gym area on the University campus.

Borough police searched for the suspect, believed headed on Washington Road toward Nassau, without success. He was described as 5-10 or six feet tall, thin, with a medium Afro, wearing red cordoroy pants and light green jacket.

The owner was a University student. Police said they had no report of the bicycle being locked. A 10-speed Bergmeister bicycle, belonging to a Township resident, was stolen the same day from Guyot Hall.

Taken Monday from a room in the Nassau Inn were two cameras, a 35mm valued at $400 and a $45 Instamatic. Police identified the owner as a Pennington resident. There was no forced entry.

Shoplifted Monday from Center Business Machines, 104 Nassau Street, was an $80 radio recorder. A clerk noticed the radio missing shortly after three persons had left the store.

More Batteries Taken. More batteries—three this week—were stolen, two from cars parked behind Quadrangle Club on Prospect Avenue and one from a car parked in the Westminster Choir College lot. All the victims were students.

In other thefts, a green leather wallet containing $15 was taken from a purse lying on a chair in a Green Hall office on campus; $20 was taken from the handbag of an 18-year old University student while she was attending a dance at Stevenson Hall (her bag was later found in a rest room) and a wallet was taken from a mail room in Cap and Gown Club on Prospect. The student owner lost $10 and two checks made out for $125 and $41.75.

An 8-track tape player was stolen over the weekend from a car parked behind Quadrangle Club. The car was forced open.

There was an unsuccessful attempt Saturday to remove a citizens' band radio from a car parked in the Borough lot next to the Hook & Ladder building

LOTS OF CUSTOMERS
Library Wants More Room.
An $800,000 expansion program for the public library was outlined last week to Princeton's two governing bodies by the library's board of trustees, and the expansion is included in the Borough's new long-range capital budget.

The library has 29,850 square feet, and the board would like 14,000 gross square feet more. Thaddeus Longstreth, architect of the library, originally designed the building to support three floors, and his new plans call for adding that third floor. He has also extended by 22 feet the south wall, which is the

Rabies Clinic Set

The Borough and Township Health Departments are again offering a free three-year rabies vaccination for dogs only at the Community Park pool complex Friday, from 3-6, and Saturday, from 10 to 1. Dogs must be accompanied by an adult to assure proper restraint.

Re-vaccination is recommended three years from the date on the rabies certificate. Those dogs vaccinated at the 1973 and 1974 clinics are not due to be re-vaccinated until 1976 or '77. The three-year vaccine cannot be used on cats.

outside wall of the children's room.

"This only takes two or three parking spaces," says librarian Robert Staples cheerfully. Mr. Staples is proud of the library's lively children's program (it's VERY important) and would like to broaden it even more.

The new third floor would be set back and not cover the entire top of the building. It would overlap part of the skylight. A "sizeable increase" in books would go there, audio-visual services (including a work-room for cleaning and inspecting films), stations for listening to records and cassettes, informal seating space like that on the main floor, and formal study areas.

"We have a great demand for small conference rooms—for adults learning English, for example, and we'd put them on the third floor," Mr. Staples says. His own office would move there, and he'd turn his present office over to the reference department.

Mr. Staples' calculations show that 61 percent of the town's 26,280 residents are registered to use the library. It's one of the heaviest registrations he knows of. Usually, he says, a library is happy with 25-30 percent.

its salute to the Bicentennial on Sunday, October 26, in what promises to be the largest parade in Township history. Sponsored by the Lawrence Arts Council and Township officials, the parade's theme is "Look Up, America."

Miss New Jersey, Nancy Craig, will be featured along with the Crescent Temple String Band; Bob Wallagunda and his hot air balloon; Paula Revere (not a mis-spelling), floats, clowns, eight bands, an antique car club, the Egg Harbor militia, and 25 marching groups.

The parade will start at 1:30 on Route 206 near Boxboro Road and proceed north into the village of Lawrenceville. Committee members are Bill Zimmer, Larry Ksanskak, Frances McCarthy and Joanne Coppola.

SLAVIC STUDIES ALIVE

At Princeton University. An article in last week's TOWN TOPICS inadvertently termed Princeton University's Slavic Languages Department "defunct," when in fact only the graduate program, numbering at best four to five students a year, was cut four years ago in an austerity move.

Despite the loss of graduate studies, the undergraduate program is thriving under the chairmanship of Professor Charles E. Townsend of 145 Hickory Court. With a staff of seven and an enrollment that ranges from 100 to 175, the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures offers four years of Russian language courses, a wide variety of Russian and Soviet literature courses, a sequence in Russian and Slavic linguistics and a course in elementary Czech.

A survey course in Russian literature and one on Soviet writer Solzhenitsyn, which attracted 70 students last year, are particularly popular. The department sponsors a weekly Russian table at the Princeton Inn, and this year for the first time there is a Russian-speaking dormitory.

Russian language studies is a key element in the interdisciplinary Russian Studies program, in which the departments of economics, history, politics, Slavic languages and literatures, sociology and the Woodrow Wilson School all take part. Last year of the more than 30 students who started Russian, 12 became majors, an unusually large percentage. This year the department has five or six majors, which, according to Professor Townsend, is about normal.

CONFERENCE PLANNED

On Children's Literature. The third Princeton Conference on Children's Literature will be held on Saturday, November 1, from 9 to 3 at the John Witherspoon School. Each person attending the conference will be in a small group which will discuss "Creating Pictures for Children" with two author-artists and their editors.

Guest author-artists for the day include Kay Choroa, Tomie de Paola, Leo and Diane Dillon, Arnold Lobel, James Marshall, Mercer Mayer, Gerald McDermott, Manus Pinkwater, and Ellen Raskin. Mr. McDermott (winner of the 1975 Caldecott Medal for the most distinguished picture book of the year) will join Morton Schindel from Weston Woods Studios for a presentation on translating picture books into film. The current book of each artist will be on sale and there will be time provided for autographing.

The conference has been organized and is directed by Donald B. Reynolds, Jr., a Princeton resident and librarian at The Walden

John Pirone, 50 Hillside Avenue, and Jane S. Jacobs, 72 Western Way, paid $25 and $15 for stop sign violations, while John K. Krueger, 3 Courtney Drive, Princeton

FIRE DESTROYS ROOF: Firemen from Princeton Junction and West Windsor last week extinguished flames which destroyed the roof of the Farrington Music Center, Route 1, near the Penns Neck Circle. The blaze was confined to an empty attic area but the store sustained heavy smoke and water damage. No one was inside when the fire broke out shortly after 9 Thursday morning. The store had been owned by the late Charles Farrington, Princeton resident and County Freeholder, and is now being operated by his widow. Princeton Junction Fire Chief Joseph Zuccarello said that the cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Junction, and David T. Volk, 10 Rocky Brook Road, Cranbury, paid $25 and $15 for red light infractions. Late inspection cost Raymond A. Willis, 199 Snowden Lane, $10.

Township Court. In Township court last week, Judge Carchman fined Winfield S. Dix, 38 Dodds Lane, $35 for reckless driving and $35 for leaving the scene of an accident. In criminal court, Mr. Dix was fined $160 and placed on probation for malicious damage to property.

Charged with driving over lawns on Dodds Lane and Bakers Court in January by Township police, Mr. Dix also received a one-day suspended jail sentence.

Thomas J. Cooper, 5 Second Street, Hopewell, was fined $20 for driving with an inoperative left turn light.

Township residents are invited to attend, to meet the candidates, to question them and to speak their minds about their concerns. Township Mayor Jay Bleiman will also be in attendance to discuss the issues with Township residents. The cost is $10 per person.

University Proctor Switched to Present Job From Sales Staff of Woman's Specialty Shop

From the gentle, pink-and-white softness of Clayton's store to foot patrol on the University campus — nothing to it.

That's what Connie Campbell says. After 11 years at Clayton's, as saleswoman and buyer of lovely, feminine things, Connie has put on the pants and jacket of a Princeton University proctor and now spends the four to mid-night hours patrolling campus. She's on a ten-week probation, and if she passes, she'll go to Sea Girt to the state's police school, just like any police officer, just like any male on the job.

"Eleven years at Clayton's and I loved every year!" she exclaims, waving a graceful hand with rings and bracelets just like — a campus proctor? "Of course! No reason why I can't go on wearing jewelry and perfume just as I always have."

Connie Campbell may be something of a pioneer at heart: only two other women are proctors. And it was a break-through, back in 1964, when she became one of the first black women to join the sales staff of a Princeton shop. She left Clayton's — "the hardest part was severing my ties there" — because she felt it was time for a change. Al Terry, assistant director of security for the University and a friend of Floyd Campbell, Connie's husband, said there was an opening.

"It's an endurance activity!" Connie exclaims.

ON PATROL: A student is locked out (a bone fide student, or not?), another has left a window unlocked...the welfare and safety of Princeton University students is in the slender hands of Connie Campbell, Princeton native who's one of the campus' three women proctors.

"Foot patrol, and you're up and down steps, up and down levels of that perfectly beautiful campus, in and out of dorms...car patrol, and it's in and out of the car. I was pooped after the first week!"

"Men have this protective thing — and Floyd has it, too — about my walking campus at night. I like people, so much so I'm boneless! And I especially like young people, so it doesn't bother me."

Afternoons, 3:45, and she checks in, reading reports from the day. By 4, she's off to her assigned area, armed with flashlight, walkie-talkie, handcuffs, special notebook, badge. No gun. "When the University begins to arm its proctors, I leave!" she laughs.

She enjoys the night shift. "I'm a night person, and I have all my daytimes free. I can take an art course, play tennis or golf, eat a leisurely breakfast. But week-ends are the toughest. My social life will really take a smacking."

Home for dinner around 8, she says she now has "a more liberated" husband, who helps her prepare dinner. "I start it, and he fixes the salad and does the vegetable. I think I'm planning better meals because I have that daytime to do it in."

To get the job, Connie went through a weeding-out procedure. When she learned she'd qualified to take the written exam, she called her son-in-law, Borough Council member Joseph Moore, and asked him for books to study. Then she spent three evenings at the library, boning up. The exam was coded: nobody correcting its essays knew whether she was male or female, black or blue. Three finalists were chosen and given a physical and oral exam. And she was in.

"I'm so proud to be working for the University! I can remember so well as a child in the Depression, how the University gave jobs to people in real need. I get furious when people talk against the University: it's been a good parent to this town."

Any special assignment for Connie because she is female?

"Not at all!" she says proudly. "The only thing I can think might be hard to handle — well, if a six-foot-three student from another college is bent on taking down those goal posts, I'll just have to talk him out of it!"

NEW DIRECTOR NAMED
By Watersheds Association. The selection of Adelle V. Mitchell of Columbus, Ohio, as the new executive director of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association was scheduled for announcement this Wednesday at a membership meeting of the conservation group.

Mrs. Mitchell, who for the past two years has been the Environmental Ombudsman of the State of Ohio, was chosen for the post by the Board of Trustees of the Watersheds Association. She is the first woman to hold the Watersheds job, which was vacated in June by Ian Walker when he left to join the staff of the N.J. Department of Environmental Protection.

In announcing the appointment, Trustee chairman Ingrid Reed of Princeton noted that Mrs. Mitchell's experience in environmental causes was extensive and that she had been chosen after a long and thorough search. "The Watersheds is one of the few New Jersey conservation organizations which employs a full-time, paid staff. We also own a 400-acre land reserve," Mrs. Reed said. "We are delighted to have found as our executive director a woman who, we believe, will help us fulfill our environmental objectives."

Mrs. Mitchell will start in her new job in mid-October. The Watersheds Association is Harry's Brook is as harmless as its name. ... That's what we all thought.

Here's what happens when we don't finish the job.

The flood prevention issue has been wading around the Township for a couple of years. A lot of us were wading around in our basements last July, and again in September.

- We have limited studies to obvious places and haven't considered the system as a whole.
- We are trying to rely on retention basins which can only bail us out when the right kind of storm comes along.
- We assumed our culverts were adequate, but they turned out to be dams.

In the township it's time to make more hard decisions.

- We must study all our stream systems and study them completely.
- We must use the results of these studies and incorporate them in the Flood Plain Ordinance.
- We need to design an effective environmental code that will protect us as we grow.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK: "You can't visit the fire stations so we've brought the fire equipment to you," Fire Chief George Rollings tells students at Riverside School. Trying on a fireman's hat is kindergarten Tanla Vu as Clinton Groover of Engine No. 3 looks on. Princeton's volunteer firemen also visited Littlebrook, Community Park and Johnson Park Schools during Fire Prevention Week (Oct. 5-11), observed during the anniversary of the Chicago Fire, Oct. 9, 1871, which killed 250 and destroyed 17,430 buildings. The well-received visit to the schools was a first for the firemen.

parents, K-3, are scheduled at 5:15.

Back-to-School Night will be followed by a pot-luck supper prepared by the Parents Association and served in the school auditorium. Mrs. Richard Henkel and Mrs. Newell Woodworth are co-chairmen, assisted by Mrs. Charles Hatfield, Mr. and Mrs. Steven DeRochi, Mrs. Peter Bordes, Mrs. Barbara Fomalont, and Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Schwartzman.

CANDIDATES' NIGHT SET

By Montgomery Democrats. The Montgomery Democratic Club will hold its annual candidates' night on Monday at 8 in the Conference Suite of the First National Bank of Central Jersey in Rocky Hill.

The two Democratic candidates for the State Assembly, Ed Brady of North Plainfield and Pete Dowling of Bridgewater, will speak briefly. Lee Bullitt and Pete Krochta, candidates for the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, will discuss county issues with particular emphasis on land use planning and the role of the Freeholder in government.

The Democratic candidate for Surrogate, Jerry Haley of Bound Brook, will also speak. Eric Perkins, incumbent member of Montgomery Township Committee, running for a second term, will emphasize future planning for Montgomery.

Shelley Fedder, vice-president of the club, is in charge. There will be opportunity for questions and informal discussion, and refreshments will be served.

PROGRAM TO CONTINUE

In Lloyd Terrace Community Room. Thanks to a grant from Title VI under the auspices of Mercer County, Jocelyn Helm, project director for senior activities for the Borough Housing Authority, will be able to continue and expand the activities and services she began last year in the Lloyd Terrace Community Room for all elderly residents of the Princeton area.

Last year's activities, developed under a demonstration grant from the Office on Aging of the State Department of Community Affairs, included quilting, rug hooking, arts and crafts, movement sessions, poetry workshops, lectures, films, entertainments and bingo parties as well as luncheons and other functions which were coordinated with local churches and other community groups.

A six-week program in clothing alterations has been scheduled for Monday evenings at 7 in the Lloyd Terrace Community Room. The course will be taught by Mrs. Jennie Caruso, a senior resident. A monthly afternoon film program sponsored by the Princeton Public Library, has also been initiated.

GOLDEN AGE PASS

For Senior Citizens. The Princeton Regional School system is again making available to all senior citizens age 62 and older of the Princeton Community a Golden Age Pass which will entitle the holder to free admission to all school activities for which admission is normally charged.

This includes all home athletic contests and physical education events, musical presentations and plays. Admission will be granted by displaying the pass to the ticket taker. If an activity is likely to be sold out, a prearranged time for applying for tickets will be established.

To register for the pass, stop in at the office of the Administrative Assistant to the Superintendent in the Valley Road Building and complete the form, or write a note to Princeton Regional Schools, P.O. Box 711 requesting the form be sent through the mail. Passes are non-transferrable. Anyone already registered does not have to reapply.

All About Consumer Affairs

The Mercer County Division of Consumer Affairs deals with a wide variety of consumer problems, and the largest single category of consumer complaints that come to this office has to do with the sale and repair of automobiles.

The problem may be a flood-damaged car sold as new, or a rebuilt engine that broke down soon after it was installed, or a new car that proved to be a lemon. Frequently this office can help, but what it can do varies from case to case. Perhaps a composite case history (with names changed) will provide a glimpse of what Consumer Affairs does.

Jim Erwin was driving on the turnpike when his car developed engine trouble and had to be towed to the nearest garage. The manager of ABC garage said he would repair the engine for $250, and Erwin told him to go ahead. When Erwin returned to pick up his car, he was presented with a bill for $550. He protested, but ABC insisted that the job proved bigger than expected. Erwin refused to pay more than $250. ABC refused to release the car, and Erwin came to Consumer Affairs.

An investigator talked with both parties, confirmed the essential facts, and noted several apparent violations of New Jersey Consumer Protection Regulations.

One such regulation requires an auto repair shop to post a conspicuous sign to inform customers of several specific protections. For instance, before work is begun, the shop must provide a written estimate -- a right the customer can waive only in writing -- and it must secure a written authorization specifying the work to be done on the nature of the problem. The shop must also supply copies of any documents the customer signs, a detailed invoice and a written copy of any guarantee; and it must return any replaced parts the customer requests before work is begun.

The regulations further provide that there may be no charge for work or parts in excess of the estimated price without the oral or written consent of the customer. That consent must be obtained before any costs not estimated are incurred.

In the Erwin case, there had been no written estimate (and no waiver); nor had there been a written authorization to make the repair; nor had the customer consented to additional work beyond the original estimate. For each violation ABC could face a maximum fine of $2,000. When all this was called to its attention, ABC agreed to settle for $250.

If the parties had not come to terms, this office would have referred the case to the State Division of Consumer Affairs, which has legal authority to enforce the regulations.

Elaine Schuman, a Princeton resident, is director of Mercer County's Division of Consumer Affairs. The Consumer Affairs office is 640 South Broad Street, Trenton, N.J. 08607. The telephone is 989-8000, ext. 615.

Princeton Community Village

The new neighborhood in town

Princeton Community Village has the old-fashioned neighborhood values that make it an ideal place for children to grow up in. Surrounded by woods, with lots of open fields nearby, the Village gives children the best of country living with all the advantages of a close neighborhood. There's always bound to be someone around for a pick-up ball game or marathon rainy-day Monopoly. Parents appreciate the security of Village living for their children — and the convenience. Schools are not far away: elementary schoolers take the bus to Littlebrook, and the older ones bike together to Witherspoon Street School or Princeton High.

Princeton Community Village was created for the people who have contributed much to Princeton and want to be able to live where they work. For information on eligibility requirements and to see the townhouses now available for rent, call Marcy Crimmins or Lucy Graves at 921-1686.

Major Change in Phone Company Rate Structure Draws Sharp Protest from Business Firms Here

Talk fast, and above all, don't dial a wrong number.

Princeton's business firms are up in roaring anger this week at the new--"and sneaky!"--rate increases imposed on commercial establishments by New Jersey Bell.

"It's going to kill us," said the head of one firm.

"A horrible, horrible thing," said another.

"Small businesses are the backbone of this country, and we'll be wiped out," said a third.

The change was approved by the Public Utilities Commission, but it was imposed by Bell Tel. with almost no notice at all. It did appear in the legal notices section of daily newspapers--which few people ever read--and it was buried in one daily's news columns. But no one can recall seeing a warning news story advising businesses to send representatives to the PUC hearing. When was that hearing? Only Bell Tel. knows for sure.

In essence, the new procedure levies a charge for local and area calls that have been free. You get 75 free calls or "message units" a month on your main--"initial"--central office line. A "message unit" is five minutes, so if one of those 75 calls is six minutes, the meter ticks over and you are charged two "message units." After the 75 have been used up, you are charged 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents for each five minute unit.

This applies only to your initial line. If you have several trunks, you don't get any free calls on them at all.

"It's going to kill us," said Karl Light, the real estate agent, "I place 10-12 calls a day myself, and I have a dozen people in my office, also making calls. It will cost us $2,000 more a year in phone bills. A telephone is completely essential in the real-estate business. How can we cut back? We'd lose business."

"A horrible, horrible thing," says Mr. Light's competitor, real-estate agent Audrey Short. Mrs. Short is president of the Princeton Chamber of Commerce, and she is already planning attack. The Chamber routinely sends out two or three letters a week to state or Federal elected officials, so the channels for protest are already there.

Mrs. Short's own office spends $200 a month on toll calls alone. Often it takes many local calls just to set up one appointment to see a house. She has three lines in her office, needs four, and estimates she will use up her 75 in the snap of a finger.

Feeding inflation. "It makes business more expensive and simply feeds inflation," she observes, "you must raise your prices to meet this unexpected cost. I would be reluctant to see the general commission rate go from six to seven percent, but...."

TOWN TOPICS' publisher, Donald C. Stuart, estimates a 25 percent jump in telephone bills. Like real estate firms, insurance agents and forest rangers, newspapers depend on telephone lines as lifelines. TOWN TOPICS, incidentally, learned of the new rate structure two and one-half days after it had taken effect, when a "customers' representative" called at the office. A letter followed.

Even taxpayers will suffer. Ronald Novak, business administrator for the Princeton Regional Schools, estimates an $8,000 jump in the schools' phone bill: from $32,000 a year to $40,000.

It's an irony for Mr. Novak: he'd just saved the school system $2,700 by installing a temporary system for the summer. "Forget it!" he grins, referring to the $2,700.

Because New Jersey Bell hasn't kept records of local calls, nobody can make accurate predictions of cost.

One rare organization may even make money on the change. John Lenane, administrator of the Princeton Medical Group, thinks he can save $27 a year, shaving his cost from $2,570 to $2,543. He figures he can do it by taking his 75 free calls on his 15 trunk lines at $10.20 per line. Medical Group physicians make about 2,500 toll "house calls" each month, lasting one or two minutes each. "At a guestimate," Mr. Lenane says, "65 percent of our patient calls go outside Princeton Borough and Township, 35 percent are local. That's 1,400 calls."

At first, Mr. Lenane figured the additional cost might be $110 more each month, now he thinks maybe he can save that $27.

Much of the anger of Princeton business people is directed at the suddenness of the new rate structure and the lack of warning. Mr. Novak says he'd heard about it because he'd been dealing with the phone company over his $2,700 saving. "I just kept wishfully thinking it wouldn't apply to a school system," he says.

"What really upsets me," Mr. Light says, "is not even knowing about a hearing. I never heard a word! Then this letter!"

The owner of a small Chambers Street shop says he may cancel his ad in the Yellow Pages. Grim humorists talk about buying ATT stock. The monopolistic nature of the telephone company adds to the frustration. Where can a business turn? To Bell Tel's competitor?

Mrs. Short urges telegrams--she didn't say telephone calls--to Congressional representatives, forming organizations to appeal to the PUC.

Meanwhile...it cost TOWN TOPICS \$1.62 $\frac{1}{2}$ to do this story.

NET INCOME OFF

At Mathematica. Mathematica achieved revenues of $14,839,000 for the year ending June 30, compared to $11,817,000 a year earlier, Dr. Tibor Fabian, president reported.

Net income was $494,000 or $.71 per share compared to $634,000 or $.91 per share in 1974. Net income was reduced by an extraordinary loss of $49,000 or $.07 per share while net income in fiscal 1974 was increased by an extraordinary gain of an equal amount.

The extraordinary loss occurred in the fourth quarter when the decision was made to sell bonds of a municipality with a deteriorating credit rating.

ADULT CLASSES LISTED

At Jewish Center. The Fall Adult Education Program at the Princeton Jewish Center will feature Tuesday evening and Sunday morning classes, a monthly discussion group based on readings from the anthology Contemporary Jewish Thought, and a lecture series meeting the last Sunday evening of each month. To begin the '75-'76 lecture series, Professor Michael Curtis, a member of the Political Science Department at Rutgers University and President of the Executive Committee of American Professors for Peace in the Middle East, is scheduled to speak on his recent visit to Arab countries on October 26 at 8 p.m.

The Tuesday evening classes, to meet three times a month from 8 to 9:30 beginning next week, will include study of the Book of Psalms with Rabbi Melvin Glatt, a course in phonetic Hebrew for beginners taught by Mrs. Sylvia Ehrlich, and an informal conversational Hebrew group. Dovetailing with these classes, the Great Twentieth Century Jewish Thinkers discussions will meet Tuesday, November 4, December 2, and monthly thereafter.

On Sunday mornings between 9 and 12, beginning October 19, courses will be offered in the arts of Torah and Haftarah chanting, and there will be a class led by Rabbi Glatt on Jewish ethical and life attitudes as reflected in life cycle ceremonies. The informal monthly young parents' discussion group will form again this year.

A class in exotic dancing for fitness will meet ten Wednesday mornings from 10 to 11 starting October 15; for this class only there is a fee, $15 for the series, and participants should register by October 13.

Anyone in the community interested in any part of the program is welcome to attend. For further information and to pick up the Contemporary Jewish Thought anthologies at $4.25 and register for the exotic dancing sessions, contact the Jewish Center, 435 Nassau Street, 924-5493.

HOSPITAL REOPENING

Celebrated by Hadassah. The members of the Princeton Chapter of Hadassah and their families will celebrate the rededication of the Hadassah Hospital on Mt. Scopus, Jerusalem, at Friday evening services on October 17, at the Princeton Jewish Center. Rabbi Melvin J. Glatt, in conjunction with Hadassah, is planning a special service at 8:15 to commemorate this event.

Princeton Hadassah will present "Mt. Scopus Sabbath," with readings by Mrs. Joann Carchman, Sylvia Ehrlich, Fran Engler, Anna Ginsberg, Florence Nathan, Ruth Schulman, and Roz Staras. Mesdames Helene Buckwald, Barbara Curran, and Ilene Cohen will serve refreshments.

ALUMNUS TO PREACH

At University Chapel. Professor A. Arnold Wettstein, Dean of the Knowles Memorial Chapel at Rollins College and Associate Professor of Religion, will be the guest minister Sunday, at the 11 a.m. service of the Princeton University Chapel. Dean Wettstein's sermon topic will be "The Listening Presence."

Dean Wettstein's fields of specialization are the philosophy of religion, in which he prepared his dissertation (in the thought of Paul Tillich, under whom he had studied) and the religions of the East, particularly Buddhism in its dialogue with the West. His academic preparation includes the B.A. from Princeton University, class of 1949, the B.D. from Union Theological Seminary in 1951, graduate work at Columbia University, and the Ph.D. from McGill University in 1968.

CROP WALK SET

For October 19. A CROP Walk for Hunger will be held in Princeton on Sunday, October 19. Individuals may help stop hunger in the world by walking or supporting a walker—with dollars.

Last year's walk raised $14,820.88 to contribute to the battle against world hunger, enough to help send 2,000 metric tons of wheat to India in the first two months of this year.

The statewide CROP goal for this year is $1 million. This money will provide milk for emergency distribution to children, seeds for a school garden where children are taught to grow their own food, beans and wheat to be used as wages on a food-for-work project, loan funds for establishing farm cooperatives, wells and windmills for drought-parched lands and help for hungry people to help themselves.

Participants may contact your local churches for a CROP Collection Record or the New Jersey CROP office, 924-6466, for further details.

SEMINAR SCHEDULED

In Communications at Seminary. Practical help in solving communications problems encountered in the parish will be offered pastors in a seminar from Monday through Thursday in Princeton Seminary's Center of Continuing Education. Robert J. Thomson, Associate Director of Broadcasting for the Support Agency of the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A., will be the leader.

Mr. Thomson, with a guest lecturer from an area radio or television station, will present discussions on the theory and practice of communications. His topics include: "Words and More Than Words," "It's a Mad, Mad Maze" (an examination of commercial White in a vocal recital on communications media), Sunday, October 19, at the "The Medium Is the Minister," "Creativity and Walnut Lane. Mr. White is a Communications," "The third-year student at Princeton Hardware Store" (the Princeton Theological Seminary mechanical tools of communication), and "Practice age of three and has given

Those in the Princeton area who would like to participate in the sessions are invited to register by calling or writing: The Reverend Jack Cooper, Ph.D., Center of Continuing Education, 10 Library Place. The number of spaces available is limited.

By Seminary Student. The Ladies Guild of the First Baptist Church of Princeton will present Melvin Barry examination of commercial White in a vocal recital on Sunday, October 19, at the "The Medium Is the Minister," "Creativity and Walnut Lane. APPEALING FINANCIALLY & OTHERWISE

A long view over rolling hills, a short walk to golf, tennis, paddle and swimming, and a house flexible enough for a comfort loving couple, or a family with teenager, in-law or other live-in — what more is there? For one thing, in this day of mortgage problems, an owner who will finance the purchase! For another, a design with an attractively different exterior and wide open yet cozy, eye-catching yet liveable, handsome yet unpretentious interior. Vital statistics: tile entry, 2-story living room, dining room, kitchen, den and/or guest room, family room, 3 bedrooms, baths, 3 fireplaces, laundry-kitchenette, central air, burglar and fire alarms, lovely taste, perfect condition. A gem at $157,500. Also Available for rent Nov. 1.

"THE HOUSE FULL OF SURPRISES"

The exterior of this rambling charmer, nestled into a hillside among tall trees, hardly gives a clue to the appeal of the unique interior. The welcoming entrance hall opens on a fascinating living room—large, light and lovely with cathedral ceiling, open beams, rough plaster walls, quarry tile floor, fireplace and bookshelves—a delightful dining room, and a nice guestroom. Living and dining room and an enchanting brick-floored library overlook the flagstone terrace, post and rail-fenced lawn, natural planting and big woods, as does the big master bedroom with its glass wall, lined with a wrought iron fence (typical of the imaginative decorative touches throughout). Two more cozy bedrooms, bath and laundry are tucked away behind the truly spectacular kitchen with its modern working space and separate skylighted sitting room complete with Delft tile bordered fireplace! Close to town on nearly an acre of seclusion. $125,000

FOREIGN CAR OWNERS!!

The finest professional foreign car service in the East is offered here in Princeton. At Z&W MAZDA! Ray Walle, whose hand-built road racing RX3 Rotary Mazda just won the Manufacturers Trophy in the Camel Cigarettes sponsored International GT Challenge, is the service director at Z&W Mazda. Last April, Ray Walle also entered a stock Mazda RX4 station wagon, which appeared on the cover of the August issue of Car and Driver. In the Cannonball Baker Sea-to-Shining Sea Memorial Trophy, a whacky "get-there-as-fast-as-you-can" New York to Los Angeles road race.

Z&W Mazda does not service Mazdas alone, however. We offer the talent of the finest mechanics on any foreign make. From Alfa Zagalos to Daimler SP250s, if the parts are not available, Z&W's machine shop will manufacture them. Ray Walle offers complete service from an oil change on a Volvo, or a master tune on a Porsche Carrera, to a complete engine job on a Mercedes.

Don't settle for less. It costs no more to have the best. Gas stations were meant to sell gas. The "fly-by-night" foreign car places may not be here tomorrow. Ray Walle offers 14 years of foreign car service. For an appointment call Z&W's service manager, Brandon Jeanneret, today.

There are four or five bedrooms in all and four full baths. By simply renting out one room to a university student who might also cut your grass, you can live in a fantastic contemporary for the same monthly payments as you'd pay in a seventy thousand dollar home. 2 Issues in Borough: Money and Consolidation

THE MAYOR: Robert W. Cawley is shown here in the mayor's office in Borough Hall. A Republican, Mr. Cawley is seeking his third term.

CHALLENGER: Jan Schneider is running against Mr. Cawley for the job of mayor of the Borough. A Democrat, she is the second woman to seek the office. The first was another Democrat Alice Male, in 1971.

Borough voters choose a mayor this year — for the first time since 1971. Republican Robert W. Cawley is running for his third term, challenged by Democrat Jan Schneider.

The two contenders know one another well, through many years of activity in various community endeavors. They have great mutual respect and presented a solid front two weeks ago when Borough officials went to Trenton in a vain attempt to get the legislature to amend the "thorough and efficient" education bill so the Borough wouldn't be battered by a $400,000-odd tax increase as a result of a shift in cost-sharing with the Township.

Two seats are to be filled on Borough Council. Democratic incumbent Barbara Sigmund is running for her second three-year term, joined by Gus Escher. The Republicans are running Richard Woodbridge and John Bleimeier.

Money and consolidation with Princeton Township are the main issues.

"Money is THE issue," says Mr. Cawley, shaking his head in sorrow. "In the next four years, it's GOT to hit us, and I'm afraid we're going to be in dire financial straits. Sewer costs will mean an additional burden of about $200 per household per year. The whole school financing mess — quite apart from the cost-sharing — will hit us."

"And how do we provide these relatively new social services that are aimed at the very people who can least afford the taxes to pay for them!"

"Fund Drive" Needed. Mrs. Schneider advocates more aggression in seeking out county, state and Federal money. "There is a popular image of Princeton as a super-affluent community, but we aren't!" she exclaims.

"We have made a real effort to cut, and it has hurt in a few areas," the mayor continues. "For example, the library board has these expansion plans with a price-tag between $400,000 and $700,000. Every fibre of me says 'Yes!' but in the context of tax pressures, what's going to be cut?"

All candidates say that voters mention taxes first. The problem of sharing the cost of Princeton's schools is big in people's minds, both mayoralty candidates have learned, as they campaign.

Cost-sharing with the Township inevitably brings up that old subject, municipal consolidation. Mrs. Schneider issued a strong statement last week opposing it at this time, and her Democratic running-mates agree with her.

Philosophically, Mr. Cawley has favored consolidation and he still believes that "ultimately," it's a good thing, and should be examined. A citizens committee was named to study the question but has been stalled for many months, waiting for the state to act on school financing.

A Risk in Change. "When you introduce change, you take on a risk," Mr. Cawley warns, "and consolidation would be a real change. There are positive things about consolidation: it would mean a larger town, yes, but still a relatively small one. It would give us a greater degree of needed specialization in administration; we do have some areas of duplication; we would have some cost-saving opportunities."

"People say the Borough is more heterogenous than the Township, but as people move into the PCH project and the Yedlin project, I think the Township will become more heterogenous than it now is."

Mrs. Schneider, aware that the consolidation committee is treading water, urges a little swimming as well.

"I'd like to see the consolidation committee go back and talk with citizens, asking for opinions and reasons," Mrs. Schneider says. "Renters might talk about housing inspections under consolidation. What about garbage pick-up? How would a joint zoning board operate?"

"I think 'Now' is a key word," she continues. "It's not intelligent to preclude consolidation for the entire future. But many citizens wonder whether they have enough information to make a decision. They may have had an effect on some Borough action — a zoning decision, probably — and talk about preserving the character of the town."

Cawley is Flexible. And Mr. Cawley concludes his remarks on the subject with, "I've never said absolutely this is the only way, on consolidation. To adopt an extreme position on so complex an issue is wrong. I pushed the Fisher report on financial implications, and we now have the study committee. Both aim at illuminating the subject."

What should be done with the old quarry site, off Spruce? The Borough has applied for Open Space money so it can be a park. But should housing be built there, instead?

No, Mrs. Schneider believes, "Topographically, it's not suitable," she says, preferring black-top areas in the center of town. "The people in the quarry neighborhood clearly want a park there," Mr. Cawley has found. "You can't put much housing on that site, and the state isn't interested in small projects. Any housing there would have to be commercial developer."

Mr. Cawley says he wishes housing efforts had been more successful. He hopes "a viable project" can be worked out with Princeton Community Housing, Inc., which is now turning to the Borough, after successful completion of its Township project.

"Look at the Record." "Some things seem expensive at the time," he observes, "but maybe we should spend more, like buying land for park or housing. It's one way to preserve the character of the town."

With so many areas of agreement between the two candidates, Mr. Cawley is running on his record. He has been mayor for six years, serving a two-year term before the length of the term was changed by law.

"I've tried to be interested in the environment," he says, "I was more involved than anyone in the site-plan review ordinance and I hope it will be useful. I wish re-cycling were embraced more. I feel a real need to clear up our own sewer system, and I hope delays in the regional system can be resolved more rapidly."

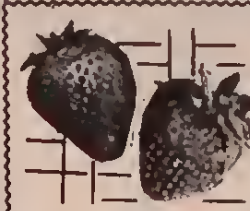

"I set up the transportation committee with Jim Floyd, who was Township mayor at the time. I think we've made a good start with the Loop Bus, and if our strategy works with Mercer Metro and they take over the operation, we'll be off the hook."

"On the people-oriented esthetic side — we've had 'events' in the central

HINGLE, IN PERSON
 When Film Is Shown, Pat Hingle, currently starring in McCarter's "A Grave Undertaking," will appear in person when "Splendor in the Grass" is screened next Monday at 7:30 p.m. at McCarter.

Mr. Hingle is in the cast of "Splendor," along with Warren Beatty and Natalie Wood. The film was made by Elia Kazan in 1961. The actor will talk about the film and will answer audience questions.

ENCORES...
 For Inn Cabaret Show Friday. The Inn Cabaret will launch its fall season Friday with shows at 8:30 and 10:30 in the Prince William Room of the Nassau Inn. The Cabaret will continue its season on October 17, 24, November 7, 14 and 21.

This Friday's show will feature encore performances of some of the most popular acts and numbers of this past summer's season. According to director Daniel Berkowitz, "so many people were making requests for us to repeat things from the summer that we finally decided to devote the first show this fall to just that."

Among the numbers in the opening show are "I Want to be Happy" with its tap-dancing finale; "Bosom Buddies" from "Mame;" "Betsey Ross," an original musical skit by Laird White first performed on July 4; the tribute to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow from the "Great Works of Literature Set to Music" series; and "The Great Train Robbery" from "Beyond the Fringe." Performers in the opening program will include Roo Brown (who will also be vocal director); Jim Hopkins, Joan Lucas (who will also choreograph), Susie McCabe, Rita McDowell, John Venema, and Laird and Reid White. Davie Dingle will be music director and Mr. Berkowitz will emcee.

Admission to the Cabaret is $2.50 and reservations may be made on the Wednesday and Thursday preceding each show by calling 924-6300. Seats will also be sold at the door. Bar service will be available throughout each show.

LAUGH...

At Shaffer Comedies. "The Private Ear" and "The Public Eye" will introduce Theatre Intime audiences to the comic talents of Peter Shaffer, playwright best known for the less-than-comic drama, "Equus," now on Broadway. The double bill will open this Thursday at 8:30, and will play again Friday and Saturday, and the Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. Theatre Intime's home is Murray Theatre, on the University campus.

Veterans of both summer and winter Intime groups will be either on stage or in the director's box. Mitchell Ivers, who was co-manager of Summer Intime and is executive producer of Theatre Intime, is directing, along with Katherine Stewart, who will be making her directorial debut with the double bill. Mr. Ivers previously has directed "The Real Inspector Hound" and "After Magritte." Ms. Stewart acted in this summer's "Voice of the Turtle" and "U.T.B.U."

Members of the "Private Ear" cast will be Julie Sly, Princeton native and a sophomore at the University, who has been in Princeton Day School productions, and was on stage with Triangle's "American Zucchini;" Bill Clarke, an Intime newcomer, who has acted in "The Zoo Story" and "The Me Nobody Knows;" and Michael Kelly, who has done shows with various Princeton groups, including Harambee House and Street Theatre. He was in Intime's "As You Like It."

In "The Public Eye" will be George Oliva, Triangle veteran, Steven Reisner, who's toured with "We Present..." a Story Theatre troupe that originated at the University's Wilson College Truck Stop and Alisa Matlovsky who was in "Hay Fever," "Tis Pity She's a Whore" (the Intime production) and "Measure for Measure."

JIMMY CLIFF

Famous at 15. That was in 1962, after Jimmy Cliff's second recording put him at the top of the Kingston, Jamaica, hit parade. After that, his records were best-sellers in England and the Caribbean. Returning to Jamaica from a tour of England and Europe with an American-style rhythm and blues band, he was offered the leading role in "The Harder They Come," and as McCarter says, the rest is history.

Jimmy Cliff will play Alexander Hall next Wednesday, October 15 at 8 p.m., with McCarter Theatre as his sponsor.

Identified closely with reggae as an important element of pop music, Jimmy Cliff is probably responsible all by himself, for reggae's

The film is based on events that occurred in Wisconsin two years ago. It has been described as "an unsettling mix of funny and electrifying elements." It involves grave robbing and a crazy family of four men who terrorize and finally destroy all but one of a group of youths travelling through a sparsely-settled section of Texas.

They say nice things about Lahiere's

LAHIERE'S Princeton, New Jersey

AS LONG as most residents of Princeton can remember, Lahiere's has been at this spot, lit in lights like some old theatre marquee by Princeton standards the three-story stucco'd building with brown shutters, the former Central Hotel, is not very old, maybe a little over a hundred years. Still the greatest jolt to the Princeton image in the past quarter-century was not when they put up the towering faculty apartments down by the lake or the Yamasaki "bike rack" (the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs), but when they took down the old red toile cafe curtains at Lahiere's and replaced them with a bold new floral. Lahiere's has expanded, overflowing into the building next door so guests can wait in comfort in the new white Normandy cave. The original Central Hotel dining room is the one with the bar but there are other rooms, upstairs as well as down, all ring-looking, best of flowers and little shade hom.

The Inn Book, authored by Kathleen Neuer and published by Pyne Press, Princeton, says nice things about Lahiere's. V-E-R-Y nice things. And you, too, will say nice things once you've delighted in the fantastically French cuisine; once you've savored a mellow clear wine from Lahiere's renowned wine cellar; once you've tasted a dessert delicately prepared by Lahiere's expert chefs. Step into a world where your pleasure is the first consideration. Lahiere's is THE place for tasteful French dining... nearby in Princeton!

Players to Open with "Virginia Woolf"

The Princeton Community Players have announced the cast of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," by Edward Albee, which will open their 43rd consecutive season on November 7.

Playing the key parts of Martha and George will be veteran actors Anne Sheldon and Churchill Clark. Mrs. Sheldon is well known to Princeton audiences through frequent appearances both at McCarter and with Theatre Intime. Mr. Clark has some 65 to 70 productions to his credit, both amateur and professional, and is at present head of the English Department and drama director at South Brunswick High.

The supporting roles of Honey and Nick will be taken by two newcomers to the Players, Jennifer D. Hillis and Robert W. Watson.

"Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" will be given at the Players theatre, 171 Broadmead, for three weekends: November 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, 16, 21 and 22.

cooperation with the National Endowment for the Arts.

There is room for seven to nine actors, male and female. They will be assigned a variety of roles and must be available for daytime rehearsal and performance. Amie Brockway will direct.

"HEARTS AND MINDS"

Two Showings. One of the most controversial films of 1974, "Hearts and Minds" examines the American consciousness that led to the country's involvement in Vietnam. It will open the Movies-at-McCarter series with two showings—7p.m. and 9p.m.—next Tuesday.

Neither anti-American nor pro-American, the film is an effort to understand, as the director Peter Davis, phrases it, "what we have done and what we have become. It is not a chronology of the war so much as a study of people's feelings."

The film uses old newsreels, news footage shot in Vietnam, clips from old Hollywood movies, and many interviews with soldiers, peasants, prisoners of war, civilians and policymakers. Among those interviewed are Daniel Ellsberg and General Westmoreland.

"Hearts and Minds" has been compared to "The Sorrow and the Pity," which examined French collaboration with the Germans in World War II.

GARDEN

The Phantom of Liberte. Director Luis Bunuel turns the world upside down in "The Phantom of Liberte", a series of charmingly absurd vignettes linked with dreamlike illogic by characters who travel away from one situation and briefly into the next.

With an accent on wry satire, Bunuel placidly paints scenes where foxes are hunted with armored tanks and mass murderers are sentenced to freedom for their crimes. Unfortunately, however delightful Bunuel's ironies and imaginings might be, the lack of any real core makes the film into a tantalizing but ultimately exasperating experience.

Still, there are some delights. The film begins in Napoleonic Spain where a French officer kisses the statue of a kneeling woman, only to be cuffed on the head by a neighboring statue. Many of the situations are perverse and hilarious, like the monks who suddenly drop their prayers, break out the booze and cigarettes and get down to their poker using holy medals as chips (a virgin is worth $10, a sacred heart, $25).

There's plenty to tickle the folds of the mind as Bunuel with apparent glee and twinkle in his eye leads us down his garden path.

PLAYHOUSE

Deliverance. Based on James Dickey's book about a weekend canoe trip that becomes a daylight nightmare for its four riders, the unflinchingly presented violence in "Deliverance" may upset some but it is a stunning film. Beautifully directed, acted and photographed.

Burt Reynolds is the aggressive leader who falters under physical pain; Jon Voight is the seemingly soft fellow who toughens under adversity; Ned Beatty is the fat man who provides comic relief; and Ronny Cox is the bespectacled intellectual who brings up questions of moral principle when murder is committed. They are more one-dimensional than the sharply delineated characters in the book. But offsetting this there are some terrific action scenes including two chilling rides through churning rapids when the four city men in the wilderness become enmeshed in a horrifying fight for survival.

Musical Amateurs Will Begin 40th Season Sunday with Reading of Mozart's "Requiem"

The Society of Musical Amateurs will open its 40th season on Sunday at 4 at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road off Route 206. Prof. J. Merrill Knapp of the University Music Department will conduct a reading of the Mozart "Requiem" with chorus, full orchestra and soloists Jean Thomas, soprano; Jane Sharaf, alto; John McLain, tenor; and Stephen Owen, bass.

The Musical Amateurs are a unique Princeton organization. Singers and orchestral players from Philadelphia to northern New Jersey, but mainly from the Princeton area, gather together on Sunday afternoons to read through for their own pleasure one or more of the great works in choral literature.

These meetings are in no sense performances; they are informal readings in which any musically interested person may participate. There are no preliminary rehearsals, except for the conductor and soloists, and the music is generally sung in its entirety.

Participants range from those with modest sight-reading ability to singers and instrumentalists of professional caliber. All parts of the community are represented—townspeople, undergraduates, professors, commuters, high school students, housewives—in this common and joyful enterprise of making music together.

The chorus ranges in size from 75 to 150 on any given Sunday, and the orchestra from 20 to 35. No auditions are required to sing in the chorus, although anyone interested in singing solo parts, unless known to one of the conductors, should get in touch with Mrs. Michael Ramus at 924-4266. Instrumentalists are asked to contact Rogers Woolston at 921-2478 for information about playing in the orchestra.

In addition to Professor Knapp, the conductors for the 1975-1976 season will include David Agler, Choirmaster of All Saints' Church; Leon DuBois, Rutgers University Music Department (Camden branch); James Litton, Choral Director of Trinity Church; and Robert Jones, Westminster Choir College faculty.

Other programs planned for the year are: November 16—Orff "Carmina"; Burana; December 14—Bach "Magnificat" and Vivaldi "Gloria"; February 8—Mendelssohn "Elijah"; March 7—Haydn "Harmoniemesse"; and April 4—Bach "Mass in B minor." All meetings will be at 4 except December 14, which will be at 5. The December and February meetings will be held at the Chambers Street building of the Nassau Presbyterian Church.

The Musical Amateurs have regular membership dues or a single-admission charge at the door to defray the cost of the hall, the music and refreshments. Anyone wishing to attend may do so by calling Mrs. Ramus. There is no admission fee for students, or those who come only to listen.

Glee Club, has heretofore devoted itself exclusively to concert tours abroad, in Europe, South and Central America, and Jamaica. Its appearances have included the Spoleto, Aix-en-Provence, Lucca and Holland Festivals, while individual concerts have taken place in such locations as Notre Dame in Paris, the Basilica San Marco in Venice, the cathedral in Chartres, and the Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires.

A distinguished cast has been gathered for these concert performances. Bethany Beardslee, of Princeton, internationally-famous soprano, will sing the role of Ilia, the captive Trojan princess. The title role of Idomeneo, King of Crete, will be sung by Lance Vining, well-known here through appearances in both concert and opera.

Frank Hoffmeister, a member of several opera companies including the Opera Company of Boston and the Bel Canto Opera Company of New York, will sing the role of Idamante, the son of Idomeneo. Appearing as Electra, Princess of Argos, will be Marie Bogart, also a Princetonian and also a member of the Bel Canto Company of New York.

Lester Erich, a member of the Westminster Choir College voice faculty, will sing two roles: Arbace, Counsellor to the King, and the High Priest of Neptune. The short offstage role of the Voice of the Oracle of Neptune will be sung by John Bogart, 1972 graduate of Princeton and member of the Santa Fe Opera Company.

Generally acknowledged as Mozart's first truly great work, "Idomeneo" is rarely performed because of its difficulty, and indeed these performances will be the first of the work ever presented in Princeton. Tickets are obtainable at the University Store and will be sold at Alexander Hall on the evenings of the performances.

FOLK FESTIVAL SET

At Mercer County College. The first annual Assunpink Creek Folk Festival will take place on Saturday, October 18, at Mercer County Community College on Old Trenton Road in West Windsor Township. Sponsored by the Princeton Folk Music Society, the festival will include afternoon workshops, mini-concerts, a children's concert and crafts from 1-5 and an evening concert beginning at 8.

Performers include Jim Albertson (traditional ballads, contemporary folktales and folk music with puppets for the children's concert); Debby McClatchy (ballads, songs of California and her own songs); Jack McGann (guitarist playing traditional and contemporary material); and the Pineconers (a group from Waretown with their own way with old-time and country music).

Members of the Princeton Folk Music Society who will also perform are Bob Carlin, John Cuyler, Jim Labig, Caroline Mosely, Paul Prestopino, Rich Kaufman and Dave Ressler, Bob and Leslie Shafwell, Leslie Smith, Mary Zikos and the Portable Pub.

Admission to the festival is $1 for daytime events; children under 12 are admitted free. Tickets to the evening concerts are $3. A ticket discount is available to Society members.

For advance ticket sales, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Assunpink Creek Folk Festival, 25 North Lenape Avenue, Trenton. For further information, call 392-5561 or 924-7034.

HANSEL, GRETTEL DUE
In Two Performances.
Halloween is a natural time to stage Humperdinck's familiar opera, "Hansel and Gretel" with its wicked witch, gingerbread children and candy cottage. The Princeton Opera Association will give two performances of this family favorite in the Princeton High School Auditorium, one on Saturday, October 25, at 10:30 and the other Wednesday, October 29, at 1:30.

Igor Chichagov, musical director, and Renita D'Ippolito, artistic director, have joined forces again with a few semi-professional singers to draw sparks from the Princeton Regional Ballet and local children's chorus.

The role of Hansel will be sung alternatively by Cheryl Chang and Marthe Rowen, and that of Gretel by Annette Sims and Carole Davis; the unlucky witch by Virginia Cole.

ART

In Princeton

BICENTENNIAL THEME Of Exhibit of Squibb. In a nation where the present and the future have always been more highly regarded than the past, the Bicentennial has provided an opportunity to reconsider American history.
Because our society has frequently undervalued its cultural expression and discarded its goods and its records when their usefulness was over, this historical focus comes just in time to rescue a great deal of our valuable past before it vanishes.

It is for such reasons,
coupled with its artistic merit,
that the Squibb Galleries exhibition of American painting from Princeton collections is significant as art, history, community effort and the best kind of corporate bicentennial endeavor. The collection is the result of a joint project conducted by the Smithsonian and the Princeton Historical Society and implemented by a grant from E.R. Squibb. In the process, the project has provided a spectacular and comprehensive display of American Art for this community to enjoy and has aided the Smithsonian in compiling a registry of American painting that will enrich scholarship and help to enhance our view of our own past.

The concept of preserving and recording our past so that Americans can better understand themselves and their cultural product is a relatively new point of view. Until recently, thoughts of 18th and 19th century art would turn to England and the continent. Only within the past few decades has historical interest and concern widened to the point where American art has been considered significant by the viewing public.

Much of our country's growth and change is reflected in its artistic forms.
The show includes many major trends and stylistic changes in the 18th and 19th century.

It is possible to trace its evolution from portraiture, our earliest major art form, through the development of the landscape, sentimental genre painting, and into the American impressionist painters of the late 19th century. The collection culminates in the 20th century with a Maxfield Parrish rendering of Cinderella.

Although 600 works have been catalogued from local collections, it was only possible to include 65 in the present display. They were selected to give the widest perspective to the display and succeed admirably. The total effect of the exhibit manages to exceed the high quality of the individual works as it provides the viewer with historical scope as well as many great viewing experiences.

Regrettably, the collection remains only through October when the paintings will return to their owners. However, the gallery will be open on Sun-

THE BATTLE OF PRINCETON: One of 65 paintings in a Bicentennial exhibition opening in the Squibb Gallery on Sunday. Shown with General Washington are General Sullivan, Colonel Scammel and the wounded General Mercer, at right, attended by Dr. Rush. Organized by the Historical Society, the exhibition is on loan from 48 area collectors and ranges from 1762 to 1914.

Art in Princeton

days to enable the widest possible exposure for this important collection.

At the Present Day Club. Unusual paintings by Louis Pontone are featured through October. Pontone, a skillful painter, has combined the elements of carefully-wrought realistic landscape with a divided, often fragmented surface to create surreal effects. The literal elements are those of traditional landscape painting, but when combined with a consistently subdued palette, unusual segments and silhouettes and carefully placed symbolic forms, they become "other-worldly" in their effect.

Pontone is an able painter and uses his medium well. Judgments of the work must be subjective. For those interested in the surreal and the unusual, viewing is recommended.

At the Loft. Watercolor paintings by Robert Eric Moore are accompanied by sculpture by Barbara Harrison. Moore, a member of the American Watercolor Society, uses this fluid medium in a controlled manner. Maine landscapes are executed in muted colors that combine structured rectilinear forms with literal subject matter.

At Grover's Mill Gallery. A multi-artist graphics display provides a visually stimulating background for a powerful collection of sculpture by Rob Harvey. Using marble, limestone and metal, Harvey has created major pieces, drawing from nature forms for his subjects.

He maintains the essence of his subjects in relating sea life, birds and other creatures but develops a sense of structural power through interpretation of form and his use of materials. Large volumes are combined with smaller dynamic areas so that the interplay of mass, light and shadow is rhythmic and varied.

At Susuki. Paintings, graphics and collage by Stefan Martin comprise the major display at Susuki. Although his work is familiar, the current collection presents a multifaceted view of this artist. Large incised masonite works, collage combining paint with other materials, and paintings on masonite which include incised areas exhibit a consistently powerful and well designed approach.

The larger works are more concerned with space and design than the graphics which deal with their subject in a more realistic manner.

Woodblocks are included in the exhibition and heighten the technical skill and drama present in the work. Also included in the collection are prints that were conceived by Ben Shahn and executed by Martin. A different but equally pleasing graphic style results.

Sculpture by Peitre Kors is included in this collection. Predominantly cast metal works deal with a single convoluted shape in many sizes and relationships.

At the Unitarian Church. The work of seven photographers will be on display through Thursday, October 16. A range of subjects and personal points of view are included. Landscape, portraiture nature studies and unusual perspectives on the commonplace are portrayed.

The exhibition is diverse and competent. It is notable for the absence of technical gimmickry and the sound use of the photographic medium.

NEW EXHIBITS TO OPEN

Planned by Art Association. The Princeton Art Association will hold receptions and previews of two new exhibits this weekend, with the public invited to both openings.

At McCarter Theatre, "Interpretations: Realism—Abstraction", an invitation show with an unusual theme opens on Saturday with a reception scheduled for 5 to 7. Refreshments will be served by a committee headed by Pat Huckins, with Phyllis Greene and Betty Reed acting as hostesses. More than 40 New Jersey artists have been invited to participate in this exhibit.

On Sunday afternoon from 2 to 5 a "Plate and Print Show" opens at Mercer County Community College. This show, sponsored jointly by the P.A.A. and M.C.C.C.'s Art Department will present printmakers' plates of all kinds as works of art in themselves, together with the prints made from them.

The opening reception will be held on the patio of the Faculty-Staff Dining Room of the Student Center on the West Windsor campus. The plates will hang in the Extension Gallery adjacent to the dining room through December 19, and the prints will be in the Triangle Gallery at the Center through October 24.

Artists represented in the show are Judith Brodsky, Dorothea Greenbaum, Ann Gross, Jack Harris, Jacob Landau, Renee Levine, Louis Lozowick, Stefan Martin, Elizabeth Monath, Joan Needham, Clare Romano, Roslyn Rose, John Ross, Naomi Savage, Marie Sturken, Margaret Johnson and Lynd Ward. Both exhibits will be open to the public.

Another public service of the Art Association is the continuing series of shows at the New Jersey National Bank of Princeton, 194 Nassau St. The current exhibit, which opened Tuesday, consists of works in a variety of media by members of the Board of Directors and the Exhibits Committee of PAA. It will be on view through October.

PHOTOGRAPHY SHOWN

At Unitarian Church. Three Princeton area residents are among seven New Jersey photographers currently represented in the exhibit at the Unitarian Church, Route 206 and Cherry Hill Road, through October 19 (weekdays 12-2, weekends 12-4.) Widely divergent in subject matter, the show reflects the varying interests and sensibilities of the photographers who were brought together during a period of photographic training at Mercer County Community College and who continue to meet to encourage and criticize each other's work.

Constance Goodman, who lives at 52 Marion Road West with her husband and son, has turned from an early interest in landscape photography to an exploration of the varying approaches to portraiture.

Joseph McBride of Hopewell is a social worker with the Catholic Welfare Bureau in Trenton and a freelance photographer. His personal work focuses on everyday places and objects which, he feels, people never really see.

Mary Peck lives in West Windsor with her husband and four sons. She is especially drawn to architectural and sculptural subjects which she captures in formal, deliberate compositions. Also exhibiting are Walter Schuruk of Deutzville, a Ukrainian section of Trenton, Carl Deprospro from Tom's River, Frank Dermino of Beverly and Karen Tozzi of Mercerville.

VAST CHANGES MADE
In Indian Clothing. Indian clothing has come a long way since the gauze shirts of 10 years ago. Although these remain a favorite, this industry has changed immeasurably in the past few years.

While everything is still made in India, all the styles are not true imports. Many are now designed and sized here in America and then manufactured in India using the cotton so loved by everyone.

Because this clothing is especially popular with university students, Alice Gancarz and Kit Soni chose Princeton for Eldorado India, a new store devoted exclusively to these imports.

Kit, a native Indian, has dealt with more than 35 suppliers and bought the widest possible variety of styles for both men and women. For instance, there is an incredible selection of shirts, many in a fine chambray and some in almost a denim weight.

SHIRTS GALORE: Regardless of your size or sex, Eldorado India has a shirt for you. Imported from India, there are gauze and Chambray cotton ones in the widest variety of styles to be found anywhere in the Princeton area.

The men can chose a denim blue natural chambray shirt with multi-colored patches on the yoke, pockets and cuffs; embroidered blue denim ones; a new look that uses patches for the whole shirt; or heavy gauze ones with a woven blue or red plaid, $13.85 and $14.85.

Almost the same shirts are available for the women, but here there is an ever greater choice. The blue denims come with tiny embroidered flowers on the yoke or patches of muted sangari prints; there are long-sleeved solid gauze shirts with a tucked bodice, a patched one that matches orange, yellow or burgundy squares with natural ones; and a heavy natural gauze shirt with stripes, $11.85 to $15.85.

Embroidered T-shirts. The women can also look at the t-shirts, some with embroidered bodices and others with pretty lace around the neckline; or at the smocks which come in blue or natural gauze and chambray trimmed with embroidery, crochet or bodice tucks, $8.85 to $16.85.

Some of the natural gauze shirts can be worn by either sex, such as one with a mandarin collar and open neck, $13.85. Kit also told us that the drawstring pants were unisex and for all age groups. Once on, these look like regular pants, fit surprisingly well and are so comfortable, $18.95 for the corduroy and $13.85 for the blue or brown cotton.

Other looks for the men include a jacket that reverses from white to blue (again denim) with a white overplaid, $28.85, and cotton flannel shirts with lots of pockets, $19.85. These shirts come in grey, rust or soft green, and in the first two colors there are matching pants, $20.85.

Skirts come in all lengths and fabrics. We particularly liked the long wrapped ones in heavy chambray muted checks, the sangari prints, and a long blue gauze skirt that buttons down the front and has small puffed pockets so appropriate to the fabric, $13.85 to $18.85.

of not seeing yourself coming or going.

Currently there are several trim-looking wool and acrylic pant outfits by Francis X. The brown pants come with a matching long-sleeved v-neck sweater edged in a paler brown and yellow and a coordinated print blouse, while the camel version has a print blouse and sleeveless sweater vest edged in two tones of brown, $70 each.

Dresses are the big news this year, and R.F.D. has several pretty ones, our favorite being a bias cut camel hair with a flared skirt and cowl neckline, $65.

Other choices include a tan shirtwaist by Francis X with a grey, brown and black abstract print; a dark green dress with three-quarter-cuffed sleeves that comes with a green and white striped turtleneck; and a soft coral pink dress by Nancy Greer that has buttoned cuffs, a gently gathered yoke and several other nice touches, $40 to $90.

Evening Clothes. There are evening clothes too ranging from a very dressy lime green chiffon with a gathered bodice, spaghetti straps and a matching cape to a long blue denim Bicentennial skirt. This wrap skirt has a red ribbon waistband, is trimmed with white braid and appliqued with red stars and a '76, $50 for the skirt and $59.50 for the dress.

To wear with this skirt we saw some pretty long-sleeved crinkle cotton skirts by Mather in pale blue, white or navy. Or if you have something else in mind, it also comes in lime green or yellow, $22.

Mr. Scudder has not forgotten the accessories that so often complete a look. There is a black silk purse; a delicate long gold chain with sparkly black beads; sterling necklaces and bracelets; lots of scarves and several fringed shawls for cool evenings, $4 to about $25.

R.F.D. also specializes in a broad spectrum of gifts. On our visit we noticed a silk tie with a spouting whale design; a white ceramic ashtray edged in pink that invites you to "use me;" handsome Williamsburg reproduction brass hurricane lamps; and bouquets of dried fall flowers, $4 to $53.50.

Located at 77 Main Street in Kingston, R.F.D. Ltd. is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 to 5 and Sundays from 1 to 5.

HI!

I'm BUBBLES, TECH'S new washable modular seating. I'm easy to live with, since you can remove my covers and wash them. Here are some things you should know about me:

1. To remove my covers, just turn me on my side and untie the white "anchor" string that shows through underneath the seat. Then unfasten the Velcro strips around my base and slide my cover off.

2. Launder my covers by normal methods, using "gentle" cycles in your washer and dryer. Do NOT use bleach. No need to press.

3. Replace my cover by sliding it back over the seat, pulling its anchor string through and tying it, and re-fastening the Velcro strips around my base.

4. You can arrange me in countless ways because I'm modular. When you have decided on the arrangement you like, join my modules together by connecting the metal floor guides with the black rubber rings provided. Just stretch the rings between adjoining floor glides.

5. If you change your color scheme, you can change my cover to match. See your dealer for replacement covers in our washable fabric or yours.

I'd love to be living in your home!

DEMOCRATS: Incumbent Barbara Sigmund would like to stay another three years on Borough Council, preferably with her running mate, Gus Escher.

Topics of the Town

Township. New roads, sidewalks and equipment for an expanding Township — once the sewer moratorium is lifted — will mean more expenditures, he fears.

"Philosophically, I favor it; practically, I'm against, but I'm willing to be convinced," is Mr. Woodbridge's view.

And Mr. Bleimeier adds, "I'd like to emphasize that I'm anxious to see consolidation as a continuing debate, because in the future, it might be the thing to do, and debate would be informative."

If elected ... Mr. Bleimeier has a list of things he'd like to do. He wants to push for passage of pending state legislation which would increase senior citizen tax deductions from $160 to $200 and for an increase from $5000 to $7,500 in allowed income.

"Many people in the Borough actually make LESS than $5,000 a year," he exclaims.

He also favors a Congressional bill giving $800 income-tax credit for the elderly based on property tax or a percentage of rental. He urges more exploration of county, state and Federal action and pressure for measures that would benefit the Borough. He would also like to see closer questioning of the way school and county tax money is spent.

Bus Questioned. Mr. Woodbridge wants a more critical look at proposed programs. "I am not at all convinced the Loop Bus is satisfactory," he says. "I'd give it one more year, and if it doesn't pan out by then ..."

The Crosstown '62 vehicle for the elderly draws Mr. Woodbridge's praise because it was a non-governmental, community effort. "This is the right attitude!" he says.

Mr. Bleimeier wants an ongoing analysis of the budget and its projects, "not a fast, once-a-year job."

Distinctions blur between Republicans and Democrats at the local level, Mr. Woodbridge believes, but he seeks a balance on Council of various kinds of views, and various kinds of expertise. A lawyer and engineer himself — Mr. Bleimeier has just taken his bar exams — Mr. Woodbridge feels he and his running-mate fit this need. He adds that both represent a young generation that grew up in Princeton.

"RECYCLE YOURSELF"

Four Workshops Planned. A four-session workshop designed to help the college-educated woman develop self-confidence in her abilities and become aware of her potential for paid or volunteer employment will be held this month.

"Recycle Yourself for Today's Changing World" will be conducted by the counseling staff of the Professional Roster through an $800 grant issued by the national office of the American Association of University Woman and administered by the Princeton AAUW chapter. The sessions will be held at the Professional Roster office, 5 Ivy Lane, on Wednesdays, October 15, 22, 29 and November 5. The cost is $10 and morning (10-noon) or evening (8-10) meeting times are available. Enrollment will be limited.

Harriet Pace, workshop coordinator, pointed out that there has been a need for professional help for the college-trained woman who wants to recycle or redirect her career skills because of the changing job market, a desire to switch professional fields or a lack of self-confidence.

She said, "This workshop will assist participants in defining and assessing their abilities through an understanding of their community interests, value clarification and meaningful past activities and achievements. Interests tests will be administered, the results discussed and decision making skills developed. A media center containing useful books and pamphlets will be available."

Other Professional Roster counselors assisting Mrs. Pace will be Barbara Cohen, Erna Trubee, Helen Hiltner, Sheron Quigley and Ruth Schulman. The Princeton AAUW will provide resource people and will be in charge of the media center.

For further information about the workshop, call the Professional Roster at 921-9561 between 10 and 1 week-days. The Professional Roster is a nonprofit organization which serves as a clearing house for professional level jobs open to women in this area. It also offers career counseling and numerous informative programs, workshops and seminars.

Fortunately the enamel of our teeth is the hardest substance in the body, and if its given proper care daily, it will last a lifetime. Each tooth has two important parts: the roots, which anchor it to the jawbone; and the crown. The permanent teeth begin to calcify shortly after birth, and the first four erupt at about six years of age. When all the permanent teeth have come in, there will be sixteen in each jaw, for a total of thirty-two teeth. You only get one set of permanent teeth so take care of them.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Unbelievable as it may seem, a team in the National Football League once went through a whole game without throwing a pass, and still won the game!...Cleveland went through an entire game against Philadelphia in 1950, didn't throw any passes, and won 13-7!

Did you ever realize the amazing number of head football coaches today who once played or coached under Bear Bryant?...To name just a few, there's Charlie McClendon of LSU, Bill Battle of Tennessee, Bud Moore of Kansas, Jerry Claiborne of Maryland, Steve Sloan of Texas Tech, Richard Williamson of Memphis State, Bob Tyler of Mississippi State, and pro coaches Jack Pardee of Chicago, Bum Phillips of Houston, and Bill Arnsparger of New York!

Here's an oddity...The man who holds the all-time football record for the best punting average in history was NOT primarily a punter!...The punting record is held by Sammy Baugh who got to the Hall of Fame as a passer, but he set the all-time record for the best punting average in 1940 when he averaged 51.3 yards per kick...Nobody else has ever topped that season average.

Tigers Hope to Earn 2-0 Status in Ivy Race With Win at Cornell after Topping Columbia

TIME ON HIS HANDS: Quarterback Ron Beible had plenty of time to launch virtually every one of the 25 passes he threw Saturday against Columbia. The 14 he completed went for 183 yards as Tigers came from behind to defeat their first Ivy opponent, 27 to 7.

A Princeton football team somewhat subdued by the fact that an opponent widely picked to finish last in the Ivy League cut up its defenses rather consistently heads for Ithaca and Cornell on Saturday. If the Red, which has better running backs and deeper personnel than Columbia, takes charge of the action in similar fashion, the Tiger's dreams of making a run for the 1975 title could be rudely jolted.

Neither the final score (27-7) at Baker Field last week, or the statistics which gave Princeton a convincing edge in virtually every category, reflect clearly the fact that the victors were sometimes outplayed, occasionally had real problems in stopping the Lions' running game, and were confronted by the possibility that they could have been beaten until they scored their final touchdown with less than six minutes to go.

Twice Columbia, which has won only two games since 1972, moved the ball with considerable authority, largely on the option sweeps executed by quarterback Mike Delaney and the ball carrying of Doug Jackson, whose 114-yard total was far and away the best of a three-year career. The first time the Lions got the ball, they rolled 87 yards in 10 plays to the game's first touchdown.

Later, they took the second half kickoff 58 yards to a first on the Tiger 21, where a fumble cut short the drive that might have pared their half-time deficit to six points. Defensive problems in the secondary, compounded by a lapse at strong safety on a 51-yard pass play that set up the touchdown, were responsible for Princeton's troubles. Cornell, a better team, may raise a greater degree of hob this weekend.

Improvement in Second Half. What bailed the Tigers out was repetition of the stronger second half defensive play that had been responsible for victory in the Rutgers game. It was not quite as dramatic, but it did the trick.

After the Lions' drive that began the final half, they did not have the ball across midfield again until the Princeton margin had been raised to 27-7 and less than five minutes remained on the clock. For the final two periods, the losers' offense showed 91 yards on the ground and a mere two pass completions for 18 yards. It was

SPORTS In Princeton

Columbia's lack of an air game (5 for 15 for 82 yards) that kept it from being more of a threat. Not too surprisingly, Princeton could not maintain the peak it had reached for its opening game victory over Rutgers, and the errors of execution took their toll.

Offensively, it was largely a two-man show that the Tigers staged, and to no one's surprise, it was quarterback Ron Beible and fullback Bob Reid, both three-year starters, who piled up the most impressive statistics. Beible had a rare 200-yard plus afternoon in total offense: 14 for 25 and 183 yards passing, to which he added 49 yards on the ground, including a five-yard keeper for the final TD.

Reid, who ran untouched for 47 yards to give Princeton its second touchdown, was credited with 82 in all and a fine 8.2 average. Art Walker, Mike Carter and Bobby Isom, all found the going somewhat harder, and all need improved blocking from the interior line. Short yardage continues to be a Princeton problem, and long yardage, save for Reid's run, was non-existent despite the presence of unusual ball-carrying ability. It is, of course, difficult to fault an offense that totals 397 yards -- 214 running, 183 passing.

Tiger Defense Flawed. Columbia's scoring drive, reminiscent of 1971 and 1973 at Baker Field, when the Light Blue rolled up a total of 36 points good for a pair of victories, revealed flaws in the Princeton defense that will be far more costly against stronger teams if they remain uncorrected. The option pitchouts were not well covered by the cornerbacks and there was evidence that the drive might have gone all the way on the ground had not the improperly covered pass erased 51 yards to the Princeton 1.

It was to the credit of the Tiger offense that it had the poise and ability to match the home team's score as soon as it got its hands on the ball again. Beible directed a 65-yard march in nine plays, one of them a pass to tight end Todd Jacobson for 10 and the rest of the yardage gained on the ground. Walker's dive over the middle from three yards out and the first of Scott Morrison's three conversions created a 7-7 deadlock.

As the second quarter

QUICK LOOK AT CORNELL

OFFENSE: Backs, primarily Don Fanelli, run very well but experienced quarterback and resultant balance are lacking

DEFENSE: Lettman starts at every position. Despite experience, should be overmatched by backfield that includes Ron Beible and Bob Reid

CHIEF THREAT: Strong running game. Tiger linebackers likely to have busy afternoon

CHIEF PROBLEM: Unless new quarterback Joe Mollica passes well, Cornell offense will not score often.

TYPE OF ATTACK: Wing-T

began, a Princeton drive fizzled on the Lion 20, where a missed handoff resulted in no gain on 4th and 1. When Columbia punted shortly thereafter, Carter reversed his field on the return and ate up 33 yards to put the ball on the home team 18. Three plays gained only eight yards, and Morrison booted a 26-yard field goal.

Columbia could not move after the kickoff, punted just across midfield, and on second and four, Reid shot through right guard into an over-shifted secondary and beat his nearest pursuer into the end zone by four yards. Another Morrison field goal with 12 seconds left, this one from 21 yards out, made it 20-to-7 at the half.

Lion Threats Die. The Lions' fumble which killed off their drive opening the third period was their best effort for the rest of the afternoon. On the final play of the quarter, Morrison's shot at a 35-yard field goal was wide to the right.

At 9:06 of the final round, Beible's keeper climaxed a 51-yard march during which he had mixed his play selection well and hit three different receivers (Dan Fournier, Neil Chamberlin, Todd Jacobson.) Chamberlin again had six on the day, giving him a dozen for the season, a high ranking nationally for pass receptions and needing 20 more to break the season record and 29 to top the career record in the Princeton book.

While it did seem that Princeton's play, particularly on defense, was somewhat less impressive than that against Rutgers, Columbia had greater ability than it had been given credit for off its 1-8 season a year ago and opening-day loss to Lafayette. The Lions have three good ball carriers in Jackson, Kirk Combs and Bruce Stephens, and their defense will not be as overmatched, as it was Saturday, against teams which do not field a standout quarterback.

The Tigers, who have now won their first two for the first time in five years, have the ability to win at least their next three. To do so, however, they must improve their running game when short yardage is essential, and show greater perception on defensive diagnosis of option plays.

CORNELL REBUILDING

Tigers Should Win. Two years ago, when Bob Casciola had coached just two games at Princeton, he took his thoroughly inexperienced team to Ithaca and saw it decimated, 37 to 6. Now the situation is somewhat reversed, in that Cornell has a brand new coach (George Seifert, who specialized in defense while on the staff at Stanford), and must undergo a learning period of its own. The difference is that the personnel available to Seifert is a good deal more of a veteran squad than greeted Casciola here in 1973.

Cornell's one great need is a capable quarterback to replace Kevin Sigler, the Ivies' total offense leader last year despite the fact that it was his first season as a regular. The Ithacans' best running back is 215-lb. Don Fanelli, who heads a backfield directed by junior Joe Mollica.

Both top receivers return, Bruce Starks a three-year regular, and Don Wierbinski, a 220-lb. tight end. The defensive line includes a pair of 245-pounders in tackle Bob Hall and middle guard Steve Horrigan, but the deep secondary has three members who range from 5-11 down to 5-9. They may have their problems working on passes against Dan Fournier, Neil Chamberlin and Todd Jacobson, who range from 6-2 to 6-4.

Cornell has dropped a two-point decision to Colgate and won by two touchdowns from Bucknell. If the Tigers cannot handle this team Saturday, it is unlikely they will improve sufficiently to make a strong run against Brown, Harvard and Yale for the Ivy title.

CLASSES SCHEDULED

For Indoor Tennis. The week of October 20 marks the beginning of the Community Tennis Program's winter season. Brochures outlining daytime and evening instruction for all ages were mailed last week.

Through the courtesy of the Princeton Regional Schools, the Community Park School Inflatable will again be available. Weekday evening group lessons are slated for adults at the Bubble, while classes for youngsters will be held there on Sundays.

A new feature this year is the limited-enrollment program for adults on Saturday mornings in the Inflatable. Classes will have no more than three or four players per court with one instructor for more individualized instruction.

In the same vein, "Excellence" groupings for junior tennis players will again be offered. This program, which is under the supervision of David Benjamin, the Princeton tennis coach, will feature varsity tennis players in the instructional lineup. Students will be grouped by rankings and instructors' recommendations, and will also be on a limited scale for more intensive training.

At the Indoor Tennis Center on Washington Road will be additional classes run by the Princeton Program. Junior students from the intermediate level up will have group lessons on weekday afternoons, and there will be time allotted for the Senior Citizens Group again this winter.

Many of the Indoor Center classes will be led by the new tennis pro, John Godzinowicz, who taught in the Fall Outdoor Classes. Another new staff member is Debbie Campbell, a nationally-ranked freshman at Princeton University. A number of teachers from the University's tennis team are also included on the list.

Seasonal court reservations may be made at the Inflatable. Groups can rent a court for 1½ hours per week for the 20-week season by filling in the application in the winter brochure and stating a time preference.

Class applications should be made early since indoor court space is limited. Any tennis player who would like to be added to the Program's mailing list should call the Tennis Office, 924-4343, between 9 and 5 weekdays.

THOMAS TO SCHULMAN: The combination of Tommy Thomas to Dan Schulman shown here catching the ball against Ewing just before the end of the half, connected six times in Princeton's 13-10 victory.

Little Tigers Upset Ewing, 13-10, to Stand 1-1; To Meet Tough Lawrence High Here Saturday

"We were able to play when we had to play," observed Princeton High football coach Jim Beachell after his tiring team managed to hang on and defeat favored Ewing Saturday, 13-10.

And the Little Tigers will be called on again to come up with the big play when needed if they hope to make it two in a row this weekend at the expense of visiting Lawrence High School. Kickoff at the PHS field will be 11 a.m.

Lawrence, 7-2 last year, including a victory over PHS after Princeton had won its first two, received an unaccustomed thrashing last week by South Hunterdon. Hunterdon rolled up 490 yards total offense in blanking the Cardinals, 28-0. It was Lawrence's first loss.

The Cardinals can be expected to rebound against PHS and Beachell agreed it would be a "big game. They have some fine running backs and are well-balanced," he said.

Against Ewing, PHS scored on two big plays in the first half, its first touchdowns of the season, and made them stand up against a charged-up Blue Devil team in the final period. "We were very tired in the second half; we have a lot of guys going both ways," commented Beachell.

The game was marked by a number of fumbles, interceptions and penalties on both sides, but none served to distract from the excitement of the game.

After exchanging fumbles in the first period, when Ewing couldn't seem to do anything right, Dave Seagers fell on a Ewing fumble on the 46 and PHS marched the remaining 54 in five plays. The payoff was a 35-yard beauty.

Quarterback Tommy Thomas faked to his fullback Eric Ziolkowski, held on and circled around end before pitching back to the trailing Tony Strong. It was a finely executed option and had the PHS bench saying, "Pretty, Tony, pretty." Paul Soderman's attempted extra point kick was low and blocked.

Princeton scored again with just 14 seconds on the clock in the first half. Following a 35-yard field goal by 220-pound tackle Art Miccio of Ewing, the Blue Devils tried a dribble kick, but PHS covered it on the 40.

Thomas passed twice to Dan Schulman and Ziolkowski got a first down on the 29 with 14 seconds left. Thomas then arched a high pass to Dave Lacy and the PHS end pulled in ahead of two defenders for the score. This time Doerman connected for the p.a.t.

PHS Controls Ball. PHS controlled the ball for all but two plays in the third period (Miccio recovered a PHS fumble but PHS regained the ball two plays later on Thomas' second interception).

Some fine punting by sophomore Barry Turner, one a 50-yarder, had kept Ewing from good field position but Ewing's quarterback Jerry Davis was not to be denied. Davis, 11 of 24 for 260 yards, threw a perfect strike to his favorite target, Jeff Summers, and the 5-10, 155-pound wingback took it in full stride for a 55-yard TD with 9:04 left. The momentum shifted quickly to the Blue Devils, trailing now by three.

PHS was unable to move and had to punt. Ewing drove to the ten but was stopped when Craig Rendall recovered a Davis fumble. Rendall rose up again when with Ewing driving goalward with a little over a minute left, he threw Davis for a 20-yard loss back to the Ewing 47. Ewing's final desperation pass was batted down by Lewis Gumbiner and PHS took over with 51 seconds left.

Thomas played a solid game for the Little Tigers, completing 10 of 20 passes for 127 yards, six pulled down by Schulman. Several were gutsy calls deep in his own territory.

"We wanted to run the ball more but we had to throw; they were giving it to us," said Beachell. PHS balanced its attack with 117 yards rushing, most of it carved out by Ziolkowski and Strong. Ewing in contrast was held to 48 yards rushing as PHS was able to contain its touted speedster, Ken Hoagland.

More than half of Princeton's defensive unit plays both ways -- Ziolkowski, Soderman, Schulman, Rendall, Seagers, Thomas, Strong and Nate Harris. Ziolkowski, Harris, Rendall and John Hoover continuously applied the pressure, as Ewing committed five turnovers.

Beachell singled out the play of Harris and Anthony Cirullo on the line, Strong, Lacy and Turner. "Turner," he said, "did a beautiful job punting; we've been waiting for that." Lacy made some fine catches and handled the punt returns while Strong, Beachell said, "got us the yardage when we needed it."

The victory was Princeton's 17th over Ewing against five setbacks. Both teams are presently 1-1.

WEST WINDSOR READY

For Allentown. Primed by their first win of the season, a 12-6 come-from-behind conquest of Point Pleasant, the West Windsor Pirates will entertain reeling Allentown Saturday afternoon at 1:30. The game will be played at Mercer County Park, West Windsor's home field.

Allentown, winless in two starts, was keelhaunched last week by unbeaten Hightstown, 58-0. The Rams amassed a total offense of 524 yards in 48 minutes of play, a school record. Dana Shelton ripped the Allentown defense apart with 247 yards in 24 carries and five touchdowns, another school record.

Indications are that the West Windsor is starting to jell. "It's the best we've played," said coach Rex Walker, following the Pirates win over Point Pleasant—the same school which last year routed West Windsor, 37-0.

The shore team had taken a first period lead on a 53-yard TD pass but West Windsor tied it with a 25-yard pass from quarterback Darryl MacPherson to Dave Duncan before the half ended. The drive of 68 yards had been aided by the rushing of Ron Dilatush and MacPherson.

The Pirates scored their winning TD in the third period when Dilatush's 17-yard scamper capped a 50-yard march. A 28-yard pass from MacPherson to Duncan set up the score.

West Windsor rushed for 166 yards, led by Chris Holcombe who gained 68 in 14 carries. The Pirates' defense limited the home team to 48 yards rushing.

PDS WINS AGAIN 32-14
Morristown-Beard Here Friday. Princeton Day School's Billy Martin had another outstanding game, rushing for 217 yards and scoring four touchdowns Saturday to lead the Panthers to a 32-14 decision over visiting Montclair Academy. The outcome marked the first time that a PDS football team had won its first three games.

The voracious Panthers will take on winless Morristown-Beard next, in a Friday afternoon contest at PDS starting at 3:30.

Coach John Boneparth declined to make any predictions about Friday's contest. "It may sound trite," he said, "but they'll all be tough. We're taking them one at a time and enjoying it."

If Martin hadn't done it so many times before, his achievement against Montclair Academy would have been acclaimed more than it was. Such performances, however, have come to be expected from the 190-lb., 6-1 tailback.

Martin scored on runs of 1, 22, 6 and 3 yards, getting three in the second period after the teams had battled through a scoreless first. Co-captain Mark Blaxill added the final six-pointer on a two-yard plunge in the final period.

"We moved the ball very well," said Boneparth, as he watched his team steamroller the visitors with scoring drives of 85, 80, 64 and 57 yards. "Montclair Academy was the best team we've seen all year and to move the ball as we did and at the same time take away their running attack pleased the coaches to no end."

Quarterback Bill Baggitt complimented Martin's running by completing six of nine passes for 101 yards. Steve Judge caught five for 88 yards and Rob Olsson had one 13-yard reception.

Olsson, Dave Barondess and Jeb Burns also kept the visitors untracked by intercepting passes.

FUEL OIL, U-STORE WIN
In Senior Midget Football, in opening games last week in the senior division of the Princeton Midget Football League, Fuel Oil blanked Nassau Conover, 12-0, and U-Store defeated Rug Mart, 18-6. Peter Sharpless scored both Fuel Oil touchdowns on runs of 88 and six yards. He and Mike Greenland combined for 189 of the 195 yards the victors gained. Nassau Conover was held to eight yards rushing and minus six passing by the Fuel Oil defense.

In the other game played Sunday at the high school field, the passing of Doug Ferguson to his 5-11 end, Patrick McAvenia — good for two touchdowns — was the difference in U-Store's victory over Rug Mart. Archie Jenkins added the victors' third TD on a run.

Tom Scibetta scored the losers' lone touchdown on a pass and was outstanding on defense.

The U-Store rushed for 142 yards and completed five of 10 passes for 71 more. Rug Mart gained only one yard rushing, and 27 in the air on two complete passes in six attempts.
